Wolves in Cold Weather. It's Japan's Turn. More Religious War. Doubling Up Taxes.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.

GOOD WEATHER in Chicago, no signs of the late blizzard and far below zero weather. Crowds are already coming to see what is ready of next spring's exposition, now ahead of schedule and sure to be ready for the opening day. Visitors, paying ten cents admission, to the empty buildings, have contributed $800,000 to the enterprise.

This will be the first great exposition with automobiles bringing crowds, and Chicago should prepare abundant, convenient parking space.

IN VERY cold weather, wolves forget caution, enter villages and attack recklessly. This depression represents cold weather for the gangster, and he becomes increasingly bold.

In Chicago's loop, yesterday, with crowds looking on, four gangsters attacked a jewelry shop, two smashing the windows, removing trays of diamonds, while two others kept guard with sawed-off shotguns, wounding two employes as they came through the door.

The gangsters drove away, firing as they went, to discourage pursuit, and escaped.

AN END of prohibition, if it comes, will interfere with the earnings of thousands of criminals, and make it necessary for police, public and government to do something about the crime wave. Nothing has been done yet.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS has been warning Japan, and now, for a change, Japan warns the league not to censure Japan for her "necessary" activities in China, made necessary, Japan says, by China's aggressive wickedness.

If China does not fall in with Japan's views, a big drive by Japan is set for next Saturday.

ATTACKS ON the Catholic church, stimulated by Russia's official attitude toward all religion, spread first to Mexico, then to Spain.

Now, anti-Catholic attacks break out violently in Germany, under Hitler's rule. At Krefeld, in Prussia, a meeting of the "Centrist," or Catholic party was broken up by Hitler Nazis. In Muenster, also, Nazis broke up a "Centrist" meeting, forbidding Joseph Wirth, a former chancellor and a Catholic, to address his followers. Many Catholic priests were attacked and injured.

MR. HITLER, Germany's new ruler, might advantageously study the memoirs of Von Bulow and his attitude toward German Catholics. And he should consider his idol Mussolini, whom he seeks to copy. Far from oppressing religion, Mussolini grants temporal power to the Pope, refused since Garibaldi's day, and pays to the Vatican hundreds of millions for rights hitherto ignored.

Mr. Hitler will have trouble enough trying to make thoughtful, well-educated Germans accept extemporized dictatorship without adding religious war to his problems.

IN A MESSAGE to the U. S. Senate, Mr. Hearst writes:

"In times of depression governmental income from taxation is less, and consequently the government proceeds to pile upon income and industry (already staggering under the burden of adversity) additional burdens of taxation."

F. E. WILLIAMSON, president of the New York Central and an able railroad man, contributes information on taxes that help you to understand why your New York Central and other railroad stocks have dropped:

"From 1915 to 1931 the state, municipal and federal taxes paid by the New York Central increased two and one-half times, from $12,654,000 to $32,211,000. From 1915 to the first six months of 1932, the taxes paid totaled $508,071,000."

IN THAT period New York Central paid in dividends $365,701,000 or $142,370,000 less than tax payments. Where New York Central stock earned 43 cents, taxes took 57 cents during a period of 15 years.

Do you wonder that New York Central and other railroads have stopped paying dividends?

SENATOR CARTER GLASS, who refuses to be Secretary of the Treasury, perhaps because he does not feel able to take a golden rabbit out of a stovepipe hat, says a few needed words to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and to the various states:

"States are coming to Washington like mendicants, hats in hands. I have cast my last vote for these temporary expedients of so-called relief."

The golden rabbits are coming out of Uncle Sam's stovepipe hat in a rapid procession in these days. How long will it last? Uncle Sam can only hand out to pet corporations, half-bankrupt financial institutions, etc., as much as he can squeeze out of the people in taxes, and the squeezing becomes more difficult.

The public debt now is above twenty thousand million dollars, twenty times what it was before we rushed, with asinine recklessness, into Europe's war. How many more billions are to be piled up?

DIVA ATTACHES OPERA CASH

An attachment on proceeds of the International Grand Opera Company's performances Friday and Saturday at Syria Mosque was issued today to Ruth Coleman, opera singer of New York, against Maurice Frank, impresario of the opera company.

Miss Coleman is trying to collect on a $1,000 judgment awarded her by the court in 1928, at which time she testified she had loaned Frank the money to help promote the New York Civic Opera Company, according to her Pittsburgh attorney, Frank W. Stonecipher.

Italian Duke Saves Friend From Sea

TRIESTE, Italy, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The Duke of Spoleto, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel, saved a friend from drowning today.

He and Lieut. Cavalli were in a motorboat in Fasana Channel when a squall drove the craft onto the rocks at Puntacristo. He and two sailors swam ashore. From the beach he saw Cavalli being swept back into the swift current. He plunged in again and drew his unconscious friend to safety.

Hollywood Special Wreck Plot Probed

PUEBLO, Col., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Railroad police were patrolling the Santa Fe tracks east of Pueblo today to prevent what they declared to be an attempt to wreck the special train, bearing representatives of the Hollywood movie colony to Washington for the inauguration of President-elect Roosevelt.

JAPS PUSH THROUGH SNOW

Invaders Expect to 'Pacify' Area in Five Days

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Feb. 23.—Driving through knee-deep snowdrifts and dragging machine guns and cannon over frozen creeks and rivers, Japan's Jehol expeditionary force pressed into the interior of the province today in a fanlike movement.

The southern contingent, with virtually the entire Peipaio railway area in its grasp following a series of sharp engagements with defending Chinese forces, moved in a westerly direction across the rugged terrain toward Jehol City, the capital.

The Northern Army, consisting of native Manchukuo troops and Japanese soldiers, concentrated at Tungliao, just beyond the northeast border of Jehol, and started the long march southwestward on Jehol City.

ARMY OF 50,000

Commanded by Gen. Chang Hai-Peng, chief aide-de-camp to Henry Pu-Yi, president-dictator of Manchukuo, the Northern Army numbered in the neighborhood of 50,000 men.

Large forces of Mongol cavalrymen from Taonan swept down from their native mountains to join the Manchukuo forces and participate in the drive which is expected to result in speedy "pacification" of Jehol province.

While Japanese military authorities originally hoped to complete the "pacification" in five days, heavy snows and the difficult terrain of the Jehol countryside made the advance slower than had been anticipated.

U. S. TOLD OF PLANS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—If any attack is made upon Japanese civilians in the Peiping-Tientsin area by the Chinese, Japan's military machine will roll over those two cities, Katsuji Debuchi, the Japanese ambassador, informed Secretary of State Stimson today.

Debuchi emphasized that Japan had no intention of sending its armies south of the Great Wall in the direction of Peiping and Tientsin "unless provoked" by the Chinese.

He explained, however, that an attack on Japanese nationals in either of those two cities would be regarded a provocation.

'War' in Orient To Delay World Hop

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Declaring he doesn't want to be mistaken for an enemy flier in the Far East war zone, James Mattern announced here today that he would delay his proposed round-the-world flight until the Sino-Japanese difficulties quiet down.

Mattern landed here at 5:35 p. m. yesterday, following a 1,650-mile flight from Bennett Field, New York. His flight, completed in 13 hours and 56 minutes, was a "warm-up" trip to test the worthiness of his plane.

Bank Admits Selling 'Short'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Officials of the National City Company acknowledged, under persistent questioning by Senate stock market investigators, today that their company was in a "short" position in the stock of the National City Bank in the spring of 1929.

Chairman Norbeck, leaning forward in his chair, said:

"Then, since the bank controlled the company, it was in effect selling its own stock short while the public was buying it."

Officials of the company testified 30,000 shares had been borrowed from Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the bank, to cover sales to the public, but insisted that the transactions did not actually amount to "short selling."

The contended that while the company did not have the stock in New York, it may have been en route, though they were unable to show that was true.

INTEREST ON LOAN

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, contended that the evidence showed the company was selling short in the bank stock at the same period in which he has asserted it was conducting an "intensive campaign" to sell the stock to the public as an investment.

The evidence disclosed that Mitchell received interest of more than $100,000 for loaning the stock for a few months to the company of which he is chairman.

Hugh B. Baker, president of the National City Company, following testimony yesterday that the bank had established a $2,400,000 fund to protect the stockholdings of its officers, while it was selling out its customers short of collateral, was called. Asked by Pecara if the company had borrowed any

Follies Beauty Sobs Tragedy of Phila. Socialite in Java

International News Service.

SOLO, Java, Feb. 23.—Still hysterical and unnerved by the tragedy, Mrs. John R. Fell, former Follies girl, wife of the noted American sportsman and banker, tonight told the story of her husband's mysterious death, asserting he committed suicide by plunging a knife through his heart.

His last words, Mrs. Fell told police, were:

"It's my fault. I did it."

The tragedy occurred in the hotel room occupied by Fell, director of a Paris bank, and his wife since their arrival in Solo on a tour of the Dutch East Indies.

Mrs. Fell, the former Martha Ederton, who was the third wife of the noted polo player, prominent in New York and Philadelphia society, was the sole witness to the tragedy.

STORY OF TRAGEDY

Her story was broken by sobs and intermittent attacks of hysteria. She said:

"We had a glass of beer together at the bar downstairs and then went to dine in private.

"The table was set and my husband sat down to eat. As I recall, I was at the washstand with my back to him. There was no thought of tragedy in my mind.

"Suddenly I turned toward the table. At that moment I saw my husband rise from his

HIGHER-UPS UNNAMED AT BAR

Judge Gardner Ready To Sentence 11 Employes

The hired help out at the once flourishing Monaca Club took it on the chin in Criminal Court today.

Eleven of the singing waiters who used to punish "Just a Shanty in Old Shanty Town" between drinks, and the dealers who nonchalantly dragged the handsome profits across the dice table, pleaded guilty.

This leaves only the higher-ups for District Attorney Andrew T. Park to identify with the gambling and booze casino that flourished within a boulder's push of the Oakland Police Station.

PROMPT SENTENCES

And later today something may be brought out in court about the higher-ups. Judge Samuel H. Gardner announced, after accepting the pleas, that evidence to fix the degree of guilt would be taken this afternoon. Then the defendants will be sentenced.

It appeared for a while as if Attorney B. Robert Averbach, counsel for the 11, would put them on trial. But after the case had been assigned to the courtroom of Visiting Judge C. M. Culver, of Bradford County, Averbach entered the pleas.

The State Police who raided the joint in co-operation with Judge Frank P. Patterson, were on hand, fortified with the bird-cage outfit and the dice tables and roulette wheels that were seized in that historic raid a month or so ago.

THEY PLEAD GUILTY

The five singing waiters and bartenders who pleaded to violation of the liquor laws were Roy Sineway, William O'Day, Walter Ring, Gus Harris, Sam Lewis.

The six dealers for the various gambling games who pleaded were P. J. Caslin, P. J. Haley, Roy Thomas, William Dapper, George McGilvary and Charles Gardner.

The twelfth defendant, Frank Pope, did not appear. Attorney Averbach presented a doctor's certificate describing him as ill. It was understood Averbach intended to ask for a postponement of the entire case because of Pope's illness, but Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt, who handled the prosecution, was ready with a suggestion to try the others.

The courtroom was packed with spectators eager for revelations concerning the joint.

Cermak's New Pet, Granddaughter Pals

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—"Viper Fagan," five-months-old bulldog which Trem Carr, Hollywood film director, sent by airplane as a companion for Mayor Anton Cermak, arrived yesterday, but wasn't allowed to see his new master.

He made fast friends with Miss Vivian Graham, daughter of State Senator Richard Graham, of Illinois, and granddaughter of Mayor Cermak.

MORENO'S WIFE DIES IN PLUNGE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Daisy Canfield Moreno, oil fortune heiress and estranged wife of Antonio Moreno, film actor, was killed early today when an automobile plunged off a 300-foot embankment in the Hollywood foothills.

The wife of the actor was riding in an automobile with Rene H. Dussag, who, after the accident, climbed back to the highway and signaled passing motorists. He was injured slightly.

Mrs. Moreno was the daughter of the late Charles Canfield, multi-millionaire oil man of California. She was married to Moreno in 1923 and only a few weeks ago separated from her husband.

A daughter by a previous marriage is the wife of Francis Tappaan, former football player of the University of Southern California and now an attorney in Los Angeles.

Pinchot Set to Fight 'Whitewash' of P. S. C.

King Declares He's With Governor To Finish

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 23.—Gov. Pinchot will insist that the Senate Utility Investigating Committee push its investigation into alleged improper connections between former Public Service Commissioners and public utilities of Pennsylvania.

The Governor will insist, probably in a message to the Legislature within a week, that the committee, dominated by the Republican state organization, shall go the limit in an effort to show that the organization in the past protected some Public Service Commissioners he believes did not properly perform their duties, and that it also protected utilities in extracting extortionate rates through the medium of Commissioners who did not function energetically in the public interest.

NOT REPUDIATED

The Governor does not believe that the testimony of Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Commission, before the committee Tuesday, was in any sense a repudiation or reflection upon the Pinchot policies toward utilities.

Dr. King emphatically denied today that any of his testimony gave the committee an excuse for quitting. He said:

"Any intimation that I threw cold water on the Governor's charges is false. The first report of this Senate Committee justified everything the Governor has said about the utility situation. I told the committee that I had no doubt exorbitant rates had been charged, and were being charged, which also justifies everything the Governor has said. I told the committee we

Carnegie's Part In Strike Told

Labor troubles at the Homestead steel works and in the Connellsville coke field, preliminary to the great Homestead strike of 1892, are described in today's installment of Burton J. Hendrick's "Life of Andrew Carnegie," which will be found on the first page of the second section.

Carnegie's conciliatory attitude and H. C. Frick's stern refusal to parley with rebellious workmen are contrasted by the author. Frick by this time had become chairman of Carnegie Brothers & Co., but resigned in protest against Carnegie's attitude towards labor. He was with difficulty enticed back into the firm.

Sheriff Sale Riot Rages

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—A crowd storming county and city buildings here today with the avowed purpose of preventing a sheriff's sale, was met with streams from fire hose, and tear gas bombs, hurled by deputy sheriffs.

Soon after its assault upon the building, the crowd filled the lower floor and was defying efforts of officers to expel it.

Attempt to Blow Up Ship Canal Foiled

ST. CATHERINE'S, Ont., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Thirty-six sticks of dynamite were discovered on the bank of the Welland Ship canal today. Police believed the discovery frustrated an attempt to blow up the canal.

CABINET HAILED AS TRADE KEY

BULLETIN.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Feb. 23.—President-elect Roosevelt today named George H. Dern, of Utah, as Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—The cabinet selected by President-elect Roosevelt heralds the beginning of a world-wide drive to reduce tariffs and promote international trade, Representative Henry T. Rainey, Democratic leader of the House, said today.

Rainey and other Democratic leaders expressed themselves as well pleased with the Roosevelt selections.

Rainey said:

"The appointment of Senator Hull and Daniel Roper to the cabinet is indicative of the policy the administration is going to pursue. It indicates that the new administration will try to revise tariffs and accomplish reciprocal tariff relations.

"Premier Bennett, of Canada, sent a representative to me asking whether I thought the new administration would receive overtures from Canada for the establishment of lower tariffs or whether the new administration would take the initiative.

"I replied that in my judgment the establishment of trade relations with Canada through

Farm Woman Accuses Harry Whitney

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Mrs. Mary Shuckofski, who keeps house for a farmer near Harrisburg, today reiterated her assertions that Harry Whitney, noted explorer, big game hunter and millionaire clubman, is her husband and the father of her children.

She declared at the office of her attorney, Herman D. Levinson, of Philadelphia:

"Harry Whitney is my husband. He is the man who deserted me and my children on New Years Day, 1905, and he can't get out of it."

Mrs. Shuckofski, now 54, has worked on a farm for the past 27 years. She said she did not desire money, but merely wanted to establish the parentage of her three children, all grown up.

Levinson said Mrs. Shuckofski had visited Whitney in New York and there identified him as her former husband. Whitney's attorneys maintain, however, that the case is one of mistaken identity.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Attorneys for Harry Whitney, noted Arctic explorer and big game hunter, today termed the suit of Marie Schukofski, of Harrisburg, charging their client with desertion, a case of mistaken identity.

Counsel for Whitney denies that the explorer ever heard of the plaintiff before she started her action. An investigation of her claims, Whitney's attorneys said, showed she married a Harry Whitney in Steelton, a suburb of Harrisburg, in 1895, but that the husband was another Whitney who held a job in the Pennsylvania Steel and Iron Works in the Pennsylvania city.

F. R. Bomb Clue Found, Cermak Chances 80-20

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Postal inspectors today unearthed their first clue which they hope will lead them to discover the identity of the person who mailed a crude bomb to President-elect Roosevelt in Washington.

It was found the infernal machine was mailed from this city at 11 p. m. Sunday. The package was picked up from the top of a U. S. mail box in front of a local chain grocery store by Mail Carrier Logan J. Hannay.

The mail carrier placed it in his collection bag along with an assortment of other pieces of mail. It was cleared from the local postoffice, where it was postmarked, early Monday morning.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Dr. Karl A. Meyer said at noon today that Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago, had improved to such an extent he considered he had an "eighty per cent chance to recover." The Mayor's temperature then was 99 degrees.

DETROIT BANKS DEFY GOVERNOR, LIMIT WITHDRAWALS

TURMOIL MARKS SITUATION IN MICHIGAN

Big Institutions to Free Only 5 Pct. Of Deposits

By PAUL WEBER
International News Service.

DETROIT, Feb. 23. — Detroit banks today defied the edict of Gov. William A. Comstock, and opened for business under the limitations in force during the bank "holiday" since February 14.

The big banks continued to release only 5 per cent of deposits, and totally ignored the Governor's order that all reserves held for other banks be released in full.

The "rebellion" threatened to throw the Michigan banking situation into further turmoil.

While Detroit bankers maintained that a "spirit of co-operation" prevailed, 70 banks in the rich "Thumb" area announced they would remain closed in defiance of the mandatory edict. They cannot safely open, their officials claimed, unless the reserve deposits in Detroit banks are available in full.

The Governor's proclamation, issued Tuesday, carries the force of law, according to the Attorney General. The Legislature previously had declared a state of emergency threatened the commonwealth, and clothed the Governor with dictatorial powers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Senators Couzens and Vandenberg, of Michigan, today declined to discuss reports that the Reconstruction Corporation had made a large loan to two Michigan banks.

Neither would officials of the corporation comment.

McAdoo to Campaign For New Bank System

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Announcement by United States Senator-elect William Gibbs McAdoo that he would launch immediately a campaign before the Senate to create a new federal banking system which would eliminate the 47 state banking systems in the country created a sensation in financial and business circles today.

McAdoo's plan, outlined at the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce, would put the national government behind every dollar invested in banks and would guarantee depositors against losses, he said, adding:

"When that is done, public confidence will be restored, hidden money will come out of its hiding place and that national credit structure will be fully re-established."

COUZENS URGES RAIL ACTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—If Congress adjourns without setting up a railroad reorganization plan, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will lose millions of dollars through rail receiverships, Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, declared today in the Senate.

Couzens opposed an amendment by Senator Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa, reducing the I. C. C. appropriation for railway valuation work from $2,313,542 to $1,957,000. Couzens said:

"These loans will have to be continued until Congress provides a practicable method of reorganization."

Senator Robinson (Dem.), of Arkansas, revealed that a strong effort will be made to broaden the Senate bankruptcy bill by restoring a provision for railroad reorganizations.

This provision, carried in the House, was stricken out by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Big South Bend Bank Orders Moratorium

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—The Citizens National Bank, a $10,000,000 institution and South Bend's biggest bank, today declared a moratorium on withdrawals.

The action followed heavy withdrawals of commercial accounts by large firms, especially chain stores, which transferred their accounts to Chicago banks, as the result of the Michigan bank holiday.

NORRIS SCORES BANK 'OCTOPUS'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(INS.)—A comparatively small group of New York banks virtually control all industrial activity in America through control of the nation's credit, Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, told the Senate this afternoon in a resumption of his attack on the "spider web of Wall street."

Norris supported his charge by disclosing the tremendous number of directorships held in industrial, insurance, utility, transportation and other banking corporations by directors of New York banks.

Directors in eight New York banks, Norris said, hold directorships in 287 insurance companies, 301 other banks, 521 public utilities, 585 transportation companies, 846 manufacturing companies, and 1,201 miscellaneous corporations. He said:

"That shows how these banks are interlocked and how they reach out over the country and handle utilities, control manufacturers, dominate railroads. These men, who control finances, control all business activity in our country."

Lights in Cemetery Frighten Villagers

DEFIANCE, O.—(INS.)—Residents of Brunersburg, a Defiance County village, who arose before dawn one morning were puzzled by strange lights which bobbed about in the village cemetery.

Investigation proved the lights, formed of oil-soaked corn cobs tied to pokers, were carried by five co-eds of Defiance College. They were searching for names on tombstones as part of their initiation into the Gamma Omega Kappa sorority.

Farmer Out $1.98 On Sale of Calves

M'GREGOR, Ia.—(INS.)—The livestock business, farmer August Werger reflected today, isn't what it used to be.

He shipped five calves to market. Instead of receiving payment for the veal, he received a bill for $1.98.

Freight, feed and commission costs exceeded by that amount the sale price of the calves.

would just as soon as possible attack every exorbitant rate, which shows we are in exact accord with the Pinchot plan.

"I told the committee it would be unseemly for me to comment on the conduct of any Commissioner prior to my becoming chairman October 1, and my testimony on all points was absolutely limited to the period since that time.

AGREES WITH PINCHOT

"It is not my job to tell the Senate Committee what to do. But I do say that there is no difference whatever between Gov. Pinchot and myself on the question of dealing with the utility situation."

Dr. King, appointed chairman by Pinchot last October, only told the committee that no more investigation was necessary on which to base legislation for correction of defects in the public service company law. He did say that the commission would itself recommend legislation. He declined to qualify as a witness on any of the charges touching correction or extortion pertaining to the commission before it was reorganized by Gov. Pinchot.

KING AS ALIBI

Undoubtedly the committee will seek to use the King testimony as an alibi for giving up a task it never wished to carry out.

There is general agreement here that any committee which really wished to investigate would not think of putting the interpretation on the King testimony which has found lodgment in some quarters, but would steam ahead.

While the committee is trying to whitewash the whole inquiry, it has ordered its counsel, O. K. Eaton, to fight an injunction secured by former Public Service Commissioner James S. Benn, enjoining the committee from examining his private bank and brokerage records in an effort to show how he was able to bank $888,000 in 11 years on a total salary during that period of $110,000.

Drys Plan Fight On N. Y. Election

YONKERS, N. Y., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Fred A. Victor, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, announced today that the league would fight the election of delegates to the repeal convention to the United States Supreme Court unless voters are especially registered for the special election.

He said the league would take the stand that registration rolls used for the election of last November would be illegal for use in the election this spring.

PROBERS FIGHT SHELBY WRIT

HARRISBURG, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Pressing its fight for freedom to continue its work, the State Senate Utilities Investigating Committee was ready today to file an answer in Fayette County Court, Uniontown, to the injunction preventing examination of the bank accounts of Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby.

Dismissal of a second injunction hampering its program, that prohibiting the subpenaing of bank and brokerage records of former Commissioner James S. Benn was asked in an answer filed by the committee yesterday in Dauphin County Court.

If the Benn injunction is dissolved, the committee could go ahead with its attempt to have Benn answer the charge of Gov. Pinchot that during his commissionership Benn deposited $888,738 in two Philadelphia banks, while his salary was only $100,000.

The committee contends Benn bought during this period stocks valued at $617,244, of which $172,931 were sold.

Insull Deposition Quiz to Be Allowed

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Attorneys for Hartin J. Insull, whose extradition to Illinois is sought in connection with the collapse of the Middle West Utilities Company, were informed today by Supreme Court Justice Kingstone that they would be given ample opportunity to examine witnesses in connection with depositions taken in Cook County, Illinois.

These depositions concern charges of grand larceny, embezzlement and theft by bailee for which Mr. Insull is under indictment in Chicago.

BAKER RETRACTS

As a paper was handed to him by an associate, Baker amended his statement and said that on April 23, 15,000 shares were borrowed from Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the bank.

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa, asked what difference there was between borrowing the stock and "a short sale." Baker said:

"We had rights which when exercised would give us a certain number of shares of stock."

Brookhart insisted:

"But you were short at the particular moment. You hadn't exercised the rights."

Baker answered:

"I can't agree to that interpretation."

Harry S. Law, secretary of the company, followed Baker on the stand.

Law insisted the procedure was "not an unusual practice."

Pecora asked:

"The stock was borrowed to fill deliveries?"

"Yes."

"So the company made sales of stock it didn't have for delivery?"

"It didn't momentarily, that is true," Law agreed.

'MONEY TRUST' PROBE URGED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—An extraordinary investigation of American international bankers and their foreign partners was urged before the Senate Finance Committee today by Francis P. Garvan, New York attorney and former alien property custodian.

Garvin urged that the work of the famous Pujo Committee into the "money trust" be brought up to date, and suggested that Associate Justice Brandeis, of the U. S. Supreme Court, be named as chairman of the investigating group. Garvan charged:

"The life blood of American commerce, credit and currency, are held in the iron grip of a few New York international bankers and their foreign partners."

American currency and trade balances have been so tied into those of Europe through the operations of American banking houses with foreign partners or associates, that it is almost impossible to tell where the nation stands in its foreign commerce, the witness asserted, adding:

"The foreign governments are not asking debt cancellation, they are asking bond repudiation.

Girl Posing as Man Ends Up in Cell

HARRISBURG, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Betrayed by her feminine swagger, Miss Romer Edyth Sheffield, 16, of Philadelphia, who posed and passed as a man here for three days, was held at police headquarters.

The girl, who said she is a daughter of William M. Sheffield, proprietor of a gasoline station at Eighth and Filbert streets, Philadelphia, was placed in a detention cell pending word from the parent. No charge was lodged against her.

CHINESE CRISIS 'POWDER CAN,' BUTLER SAYS

Ex-Marine Fears No Immediate Peril For America

Describing the Japanese-Chinese situation as a powder can upon which the world is sitting, Gen. Smedley Butler today warned how easily other nations will become involved.

While fearing no immediate danger for the United States, the retired Marine officer said that if we become involved it will be because of the inarticulate habit of American. The mass of citizens, he said, fails to impress the government with its views.

SPEAKS TONIGHT

Gen Butler speaks tonight before the annual dinner of the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange in Hotel Schenley.

Tracing the dangers possible from today's situation, he said:

"Regardless of any warnings, Japan is going to take what she thinks she needs. It will not be a question of what we think she needs. It is exactly as we would do. We take what we need.

"The action naturally will run counter to other nations, including ourselves. She will run afoul of Russia probably more than any other one. Neither nation is in position to manufacture sufficient munitions for a real war.

BUSINESS TO OTHERS

"Manufacturers in other countries will get the business. Japan, of course, will be set to sink munitions en route to Russia. That country will do the same thing.

"If American ships are involved, you'll find a rush of protest to Washington. What can happen after this is readil seen. The American people will be inarticulate, the manufacturers and ship owners will demand protection. Then we become involved. But I don't see any immediate prospect of becoming involved."

Gen. Butler further described the Far East situation in a radio interview with the Sun-Telegraph Globe-Trotter from Stations WCAE and WJAS at 2:15 o'clock news broadcast.

TOKIO, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Soviet Russia's new ambassador to Japan, Konstantin K. Yurenev, has arrived here to open negotiations for a Russo-Japanese non-aggression pact, the newspaper Nichi Nichi said today.

Japan rejected a non-aggression pact with Russia last year, stating other problems between the two nations should be settled first.

U. S. Envoy Warns France on Debts

PARIS, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—A warning from Ambassador Walter E. Edge that France must avoid defying the United States Congress on the war debt issue was under consideration of French government officials today.

HOOVER PLEADS ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Placing the cornerstone of the new Department of Justice Building, President Hoover today spoke his belief that "Democracy can hope to endure only to the degree that it can find the means of enforcement of its own laws, even against the most powerfully entrenched of its own citizens."

The cornerstone ceremony was the second taken part in by the President during the present week, as one after another of the new Federal buildings have started their rise. The president said:

"A chief glory of our nation is our system of laws, made by our own freely chosen representatives and administered by judges who owe their authority to us. With us, justice rests upon the conscience and reason of the people. It can rise no higher than its source in them.

"Justice in a democracy knows neither station, position, wealth nor poverty; and jjustice can act only with the most efficient, honest organization of the enforcement machinery. For this, public officers and equipment are indispensable, but equally indispensable to their success are the self-discipline and co-operation of the people."

Stuttering Linked To Left-Handedness

CINCINNATI.—(INS.)—If you stutter, blame it on being left-handed.

That is an excuse that Dr. E. A. North, of the Cincinnati Academy of Medicine, gives to all who pronounce too many syllables in their speech.

Dr. North believes in the contention that an enforced use of the right side of the body when a child shows a predilection to use left will induce stuttering.

Gain in Nitrate Exports Shown

WASHINGTON. — (INS.) — United States exports in 1932 of chemical fertilizer nitrogen compounds, exclusive of ammonium sulphate, amounted to 167,000 long tons, an increase of about 250 per cent over the previous year, and compares with imports of about 50,000 long tons. The bulk of the exports was synthetic nitrate of soda.

FATHER URGES STATE PROBE SON'S DEATH

Wilson Demands New Detectives Sift Dual Killing

International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 23.—Horace Roberts, Sr., father of the Quaker lad who was found shot to death with Miss Ruth Wilson, of Moorestown, three and a half years ago, appealed to Gov. A. Harry Moore today to order a state investigation into the double shooting.

Although Prosecutor Howard Eastwood, of Burlington County, already has begun a new investigation into the tragedies, Roberts came to the state office building here today to ask that detectives other than those who were in charge at the time of the shooting be assigned to the new investigation. Roberts siad:

"We have every confidence in the ability of Prosecutor Eastwood, but we want other detectives assigned to the investigation so that the real facts in the case may be brought out."

Roberts is convinced his son was murdered, and has amassed new testimony, he says, to show that the inquest decision of murder and suicide was incorrect. The inquest, it has been charged, was "muzzled" by political pressure, and the reopening of the case threatens an expose of local politics.

SPINE FRACTURED

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Horace Roberts, Jr., had a fractured spine when three bullets entered his head on the tragic night in June, 1929, when the discarded fiance of Ruth Wilson was found dead with her in her father's home.

This was disclosed today when the death certificate of the young Quaker was sent to Prosecutor Howard Eastwood, of Burlington County, who now is engaged in a re-investigation of the mysterious double shooting, which was set down three and a half years ago as murder and suicide.

It was also revealed today that a private detective, employed by her father, trailed Miss Wilson for several weeks before her death. The detective, Frank H. Miller, is to appear before Eastwood today.

Whether he was one of the two figures said to have been lurking in the shadows of the Wilson lawn the night of the killings could not be ascertained.

LINKED WITH BROWN

Reports that one of the unknown two might have been young Bradway Brown, recently murdered in his Palmyra home after he had boasted he knew "all about the Wilson-Roberts case," are thought to be highly significant. Brown, who lived diagonally across the street from the Wilson home, was a close friend of both young people, and was an important witness at the inquest.

His death is thought to have direct connection with the Wilson-Roberts case.

Hand-Set Phone Charge 'Outlawed' by P. S. C.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The Public Service Commission today had ordered the Bell Telephone Company to discontinue its extra 25 cents a month charge to users of the hand-set type of telephone.

The order is effective after February 15, 1935.

The company has 235,000 hand-set instruments in use as against 858,000 of other types.

When the hand-set telephone instrument first was put into use the charge was 50 cents a month extra for the service, but in 1928 it was reduced to 25 cents a month.

The first complaint against the extra charge was made June 8, 1932, but was dismissed for lack of evidence.

The commission continued its investigation, however, and held a hearing November 7, 1932.

Defending the extra charge, the company held the hand-set instrument is more expensive to maintain and stated if the extra charge were denied it would have to discard other equipment and spend approximately $10,000,000 for the new type equipment.

The commission, on the question of policy as to the rate at which the company should be compelled to discard and replace its existing desk stand equipment, announced:

"We agree in principle that the company is entitled to make some additional charge as a protection against a too sudden demand to discard its older equipment and substitute new."

Trade Boards Censure Coyne's Tax Stand

State Senator James J. Coyne was condemned by the Allied Boards of Trade for "putting politics above patriotism in further permitting the squandering of taxpayer's money" in resolutions adopted last night after he had been rapped for opposing the bill of Senator William D. Mansfield to abolish the office of Delinquent Tax Collector of Allegheny County.

A sharp debate preceded the adoption of the resolution during which several members attempted to have the name of Coyne omitted. Attorney E. H. Wicks, the author of the resolution declared:

"Coyne called this a 'pee-wee' organization and insulted us. I insist upon the resolution remaining as it is."

An amendment was finally adopted to condemn "Senator Coyne and his political associates."

Senator W. D. Mansfield, addressing the meeting, said the bill would have saved taxpayers of Pittsburgh $100,000 a year, and asserted that it would have passed unanimously had it had the support of Senator Coyne.

FATHER SWEARS VENGEANCE ON KIDNAPERS

Elder Boettcher Buys Gun; Vows to Find Son's Abductors

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Claude K. Boettcher today vowed vengeance upon the kidnapers of his son, Charles Boettcher II, if the 31-year-old wealthy broker is harmed while in their custody.

A short time after it was learned a revolver had been ordered for him by his son's firm, Boettcher, Newton & Co., the elder Boettcher declared:

"I will spend five times the $60,000 ransom or 10 times that sum to track them down if they harm one hair of my son's head."

The father, who Tuesday night made a futile effort to contact the kidnapers on a lonely road, was prevailed upon by police to take steps to protect himself from kidnaping or other harm.

DELIVERS ULTIMATUM

His voice charged with emotion, Boettcher delivered his ultimatum to the kidnapers of his son at a conference with newspapermen. He said:

"I have no reason to believe my son is not alive. The abductors know I am ready and willing to meet their demands. Surely they are business men enough to take care of my son so they can fulfill their part of the bargain. They must also realize I will spend my fortune and the rest of my life in tracking them down and bringing them to justice if they harm him."

Today was the eleventh day of young Boettcher's captivity. Police said they were stalemated in their investigation because of the father's announced policy of non-co-operation with them.

AWAITS CAPTORS' MOVE

Boettcher blamed his failure to contact the abductors on his being followed by detectives. He awaits further moves by his son's captors.

Police last night arrested P. A. Tyson, 40, for investigation after Mrs. Charles Boettcher II, was reported to have said his picture resembled one of the kidnapers. Three other men were in jail, among them O. E. Stevens, identified by police as a Colorado Springs gambling house owner. Yesterday Stevens secured admission to bail on a habeas corpus action. Bail was set at $5,000, but the bond had not been posted early today.

FORMAL INQUIRY DEBATED BY GRAND JURY

Suicide Note Forgery Suspicion Basis Of New Action

BULLETIN.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—A new investigation of the death of Paul Bern, noted motion picture producer and husband of Jean Harlow, screen actress, confirmed the verdict of the Coroner's jury which found him a suicide, District Attorney Buron Fitts announced today.

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—Transcript of testimony at the Coroner's inquest into the death of Paul Bern, noted motion picture executive and husband of Jean Harlow, was to be studied today by members of the Los Angeles County grand jury to determine whether a formal investigation into the death of Bern should be launched by the grand jury.

A Coroner's jury returned a verdict that Bern had committed suicide on September 6. His body was found in a dressing closet with a bullet hole in the temple and a revolver in the right hand. In a small book was found a note purported to have been penned by Bern in which he intimated he intended to commit suicide. The note was addressed to Miss Harlow, who was at her mother's home at the time of Bern's death.

DEATH NOTE

The note read:

"This is the only way to make amends for my abject humiliation. You understand that last night was only a comedy."

Around this note is centered the investigation carried on for the past few days by W. W. Windenham, grand jury foreman, and O. G. Lawton, member of the criminal complaints committee.

Despite the aura of secrecy about the investigation, it was reported that grand jurors believe the note might have been forged.

The investigation is reported to have been launched at the request of Henry Bern, brother of the former film executive, who is said to have told members of the grand jury that he was not satisfied that Paul Bern had committed suicide and that private detectives were investigating the case.

JEAN MAY TESTIFY

Following conferences between District Attorney Buron Fitts, Widenham and Lawton, attorneys for Miss Harlow were requested to make her available for questioning. The grand jurors were informed that Miss Harlow had nothing to conceal and would testify if and when she was called.

Statements and exhibits at the Coroner's inquest have been called for by the grand jurors. It was understood also that witnesses, including a private detective, would be called to testify. Although names of the witnesses were closely guarded it was reported that at least one "new" witness would be questioned.

Mrs. Frederick died last night despite two blood transfusions.

Miss Leslie is in the Bartow County Jail. Her mother, Mrs. Edna Leslie, of Washington, Pa., arrived yesterday, accompanied by her uncle, Marshall Gibson, of Pensacola.

Mrs. Frederick was a native of Trumbull County, O.

SLAYER SOBS LOVE TAUNTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—His testimony frequently interrupted by spasms of weeping, Harvey Parry, Coast Guard boatswain, swore today he could not remember whether he killed Garnet Brotherton, his wife's admirer, with whose murder he is charged.

He said that Brotherton taunted him with having lost his wife's love and struck him several times in the face. Parry testified with tears streaming down his face:

"Then I reached for my pocket. And that's all I remember."

When he first learned of his wife's attachment for Brotherton, he said, he remonstrated with her but she refused to give him up. At last he went to Brotherton himself and asked him to leave town, he testified.

Parry said Brotherton telephoned Mrs. Parry and let him listen to the conversation, during which Brotherton said Parry wanted him to leave and Mrs. Parry replied that he couldn't do that "after making me love you." Brotherton told her to come to join them. Parry said he inquired:

"Why did you ask her here?"

He said Brotherton replied:

"To show you how to make love."

KIDNAPING HOAX DIVORCE PLEA

READING, Pa., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—An attempt of her husband to kidnap her child in Lancaster was cited today as one of the grounds in the divorce suit of Estelle K. Rieser against Malcolm A. Rieser, of Bexley, suburb of Columbus, O.

Attorney Paul D. Edelman, master in the proceedings, said:

"We find the respondent, in an effort to procure additional monies from his father-in-law, concocted a kidnaping hoax by sending letters to his own house in Lancaster demanding $5,000 on threat of kidnaping Mrs. Rieser's child.

"The incident brought about a nervous breakdown of the woman and after about four weeks Lancaster authorities obtained a confession from the respondent admitting the kidnaping hoax to be of his own making."

DENY MOB FEAR IN SHOOTING

FAIRFAX, Va., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr said today that Lewis Oliver, charged with attempting to kill his estranged wife, was removed last night from the Fairfax County Jail to the State Hospital for Criminal Insane at Marion in a move by defense counsel.

Frank L. Ball, attorney for Oliver, was granted a motion for Oliver's removal to Marion for observation, Farr said.

Farr denied that Oliver was removed from the jail because of threatened mob violence. Published reports had said the removal took place following the congregation of a group of men about the jail Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning. Farr said:

"If a crowd formed at the jail, it was absolutely without the knowledge of those in charge of the jail. And those in charge certainly would have known."

Farr said Oliver and a fellow prisoner had reported to Sheriff Kirby Wednesday morning that they had seen persons loitering about the jail but that this was the only intimation of such a gathering.

REMOVES DEATH KNIFE

"I pulled the knife out and threw it across the room. I was horrified and terror-stricken.

"I shouted for help, and another guest of the hotel arrived just as he died. His last words were 'It's my fault. I did it.'"

Police declared their investigation showed that Fell's last words were heard by the guest who rushed to Mrs. Fell's assistance.

Under questioning by police, Mrs. Fell said she knew of no reason why her husabnd should have taken his life. She declared:

"He had no business troubles, and our married life was happy."

Questioning of the stricken widow was deferred by police until she had time to recover to some extent from the shock of her experience.

OFFICIAL SECRECY

The tragedy occurred on Tuesday night, but local officials maintained secrecy until after a preliminary examination had been concluded and Fell was buried.

SPICIDE DOUBTED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Alexander Van Rensselaer, step-father of John R. Fell, today expressed doubt that the noted sportsman committed suicide at Solo, Java, while vacationing with his wife. He declared:

"That looks pretty thin to me. Mr. Fell was not the kind of a man to take his own life. He was not a quitter. His friends know that."

Meanwhile, the Drexel estate asked the State Department at Washington to intervene in the investigation which authorities at Solo or Surakarta are conducting. Fell inherited a fortune estimated at $1,000,000 from Anthony J. Drexel, Sr., founder of the estate.

It was reported here that Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, who married Dorothy Randolph, Fell's first wife, had requested United States authorities at Java to forward him full details of the death.

Born to the royal blue of the Drexel family, Fell's chief interest lay in sports. He was known as a remarkable polo player, both here and abroad.

He was divorced by his first and second wives. (His first wife, the former Miss Dorothy Randolph, is now the wife of Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury.) He once paid a $500 fine on assault charges brought by his butler. He lunged through the blazing roof of a burning hotel at Palm Beach several years ago to rescue two women. During the World War, Fell was a lieutenant in the Quartermaster's Corps.

In January of 1932, Fell and Martha Ederton, a former Follies girl, were secretly married.

Fell had three children by his first marriage, John R. Fell, Jr., of New York, and Philip S. P. Fell and Dorothy R. Fell, who live with their mother.

ACTOR DENIES RIFT OVER PAY

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Abandoning plans for a formal statement regarding his current suspension by Paramount Studios, where he is under contract, George Raft, film actor, nevertheless today made clear his position in the matter.

The dapper portrayer of sleek gangster and other roles in the talkies denied rumors his suspension was caused by any demand on his part for a salary increase. He reiterated that it came simply because of his refusal to enact a role he considered "suicidal" to his future career. The part in question is that of a depraved character in an adaptation of William Faulkner's novel, "Sanctuary."

Hollywood is interested in the suspension of the faormer boxer and dancer, who came from New York's "Hell's Kitchen" and made a screen hit in "Scarface," especially because it climaxes a series of several like disagreements in recent months—all centering on the question of an actor's right to a voice in selecting the roles or stories in which he will appear.

MANAGER BILL FOES SCORED

Dr. Ralph S. Boots, University of Pittsburgh professor, today criticized enemies of the Harris city manager bill, declaring they have failed to explain the reasons for their stand. He said:

"Apparently the opponents of the bill are staunch believers in 'silence is golden.' Representing the existing order, they probably realize that the less talking they do in regard to their position the more difficult it will be for advocates of the measure to point to its advantages."

As a typical attitude of the opponents, he cited the recent refusal of city officials and legislators to speak before a meeting of the League of Women Voters.

Suitor Testifies in Sweetheart's Death

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Testifying at an inquest today, Dennis Boyle, who was severely injured at the time Rose McCloskey was beaten to death in Fairmount Park on January 6, said he and the 19-year-old girl had been engaged for a year. Boyle testified he did not remember how the attack occurred. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of death "at the hands of a person or persons unknown."

DOLLY WILL AIR SOCIAL FEUDS

WASHINGTON, Feb 23.—(AP.)—Dolly Gann has written a book.

She announced today the imminent publication of a volume of reminiscences to include "chapters concerning matters of precedence in Washington."

One will be titled, "Hostesses in a Democracy."

In a serial form the recollections of Alice Roosevelt Longworth, with whom Mrs. Gann engaged in a long precedence feud, has been partially published, and she has lately been working at high pressure, turning out final chapters.

Whether or not Mrs. Longworth's completed work will take up the social precedence controversy which reverberated through the capital at the beginning of the Hoover regime remains to be seen.

No inkling of Mrs. Gann's plans to turn author to top off a crowded four years leaked out until she was ready to announce her nearly completed work. She said:

"I've been writing every spare minute I have—one hour, two hours, three hours at a time."

Singer Tries Car Death, 'Water Looked Too Cold'

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Augusta Lenska, 51, who once sang before Chicago grand opera patrons and more recently to church organizations, today was recovering from bruises suffered when she threw herself in front of a street car.

Police said she admitted she attempted to end here life—had spent yesterday trying to steel herself to the ordeal. She had gone to Lake Michigan, police quoted her as saying, but the "water looked too cold."

Mme. Lenska was pinned beneath the front guard of the street car and it required a fire department squad to extricate her. The motorman of the car said she had darted suddenly into his path and apparently tried to fall beneath the wheels.

Mme. Lenska was a member of the Chicago Civic Opera Company from 1924 to 1928. Before that she had appeared on European opera stages. Recently, she said, she had been singing in churches. Explaining her suicide attempt, she said:

"Troubles—Despair."

Just about the time Mme. Lenska leaped before the street car, the curtain went up at the old Auditorium Theater, where Maria Jeritza, in "La Tosca," brought a temporary revival of opera for two charity performances in Chicago last night.

Ely Dodges Bridge Tilt With Marx Brothers

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Hollywood's battle of the century has been called off.

It was announced that Ely Culbertson, noted bridge expert, had withdrawn from a 20-rubber bridge tournament he and his wife were scheduled to start last night with the four Marx brothers, film comedians, as opponents.

The announcement said Culbertson had regarded the match "as a huge joke" and "was astonished to learn the Marx brothers were serious about it."

A large number of invitations had been issued and they were in demand from Hollywood screen stars.

Chico Marx promptly issued a new challenge to Culbertson to play a match for $5,000.

Culbertson recently aroused comment by declaring there were "no good bridge players among motion picture stars."

RULING SOUGHT ON REPEAL METHOD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—A resolution requesting the Attorney General for an opinion as to the "proper method" to be followed by the states in setting up conventions for actions on the prohibition repeal submission proposal was introduced today by Senator Kean (Rep.), New Jersey.

There has been wide divergence in Congress over whether the states or Congress or both should define how the conventions should be convened.

Chairman Sumners, of the House Judiciary Committee and Representative LaGuardia, Rep.), of New York, have offered bills providing that Congress point the way.

On the other hand Senators Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, slated for attorney general in the Roosevelt cabinet; the Democratic leader, Senator Robinson, and Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, likewise constitutional lawyers, agree the states should be left to determine the method without congressional interference.

Since the question has never arisen before, Senator Kean deemed it advisable to obtain an opinion from the government's legal department.

His resolution was laid on the table pending an opportunity to have it referred to committee.

It asks that "particular consideration" be given to the question whether "provision should be made for such conventions by enactment of the Congress or by legislative action of the several states."

OPERA REGAINS OLD GLORY

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Sardou-Puccini's opera, "La Tosca," was the vehicle on which grand opera returned to temporary glory in Chicago last night.

As Floria Tosca, Mme. Maria Jeritza, Austrian singer and former prima donna of the New York Metropolitan Company, led, and the big town's music critics dusted off the adjectives of laudation they hadn't used for more than a year.

Assisting her were Mario Duca, as Cavaradossi, the artist, and John Charles Thomas, American baritone, in the role of Scarpia, chief of police of Rome, scene of the opera.

It was old-home night for Chicago's operagoers, and the Auditorium Theater, rejuvenated to its oldtime glory, was packed. Its capacity is 3,650.

Way back in the "lowly heights" of the third and fourth balconies sat the old guard of the opera in full strength—those who came to view the stage, not the boxes.

The patrons—and Chicagoans have never been demonstrative—came closer to frenzied applause than they ever did in the large, impersonal interior of the Insull-built Civic Opera House.

Curry, the Germonds' nearest neighbor, is in jail here. He has been unable to provide the $10,000 surety required for his release.

Curry's arrest was ordered when county officials learned of his announced intention to sell his poultry farm and move away.

WHARF PROJECT TO GET HEARING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, told Representative Estep, of Pittsburgh, yesterday that the engineers would hold a hearing here in March on the Allegheny wharf improvement project.

The engineers, Gen. Brown told Estep, are not certain the project would not interfere with the docking of boats and landing of cargo.

The $1,000,000 project calls for erection of a huge automobile parking space between Duquesne way and the Allegheny, with Duquesne way widened to boulevard proportions.

HITLER'S FOES CHARGE GAG ON HINDENBURG

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Charge that the door to President Paul von Hindenburg has been closed to the public since Adolf Hitler became chancellor was before the German electorate today.

It was made last night by Fritz Schaeffer, Bavarian People's party leader, in a campaign speech at Nuremberg. He charged Hitlerites with seeking to curb the "free will" of the former field marshal, although under the German constitution the powers of the president exceed those of the chancellor.

This came close upon a report of a plot to kidnap the 85-year-old president after the March 5 election. Published in Swiss newspapers, it was described as "too silly" for a denial by the Hitler government.

INFLUENCE QUESTIONED

The threat of Hitlerites that they will retain the helm of government by force, if necessary, if the Reichstag and Prussian Diet elections go against them has given rise to many expressions of doubt concerning the influence of the president.

The Centrists, allies of the Bavarian People's party, charged that Hitler led the president into dissolving the last Reichstag on "false information" that they refused to tolerate a Hitler cabinet. The president's refusal to hear his old friend, Premier Braun, of Prussia, before transferring his powers to a Reich commissioner also caused questioning among Hitler foes.

WOULD SCRAP ARMY

Chancellor Hitler told the Associated Press, in an exclusive interview, that Germany will "gladly scrap her army if other nations do away with theirs."

In line with Germany's demand for juridicial equality in arms when it withdrew from the disarmament conference for more than three months last year, Hitler said "we insist the same standing shall apply for all."

He declared his government's attitude toward the United States was one of "honest friendship" and that he believed private debts incurred abroad must be paid back.

Coraopolis' Only Horse Returns To 'Career'

John Wilson, transfer man of Coraopolis, is reinstating "Queenie," the only horse in Coraopolis, to the job of moving people's trunks and furniture.

Among the reasons given by Wilson for returning Queenie to harness to replace his motor truck was that the cost of one month's fuel for the truck would keep Queenie for a year. Too, when a truck starts a dash over a hill without a driver, it does not respond to Wilson's cry of "whoa" as Queenie does.

Nazi Torch Paraders Beat Two, Fire Home

GROSSBEEREN, Germany, Feb. 23. — (INS.) — A group of Nazi torch paraders stormed the home of a Reichsbannerman today, severely beating him and his wife and setting fire to the house, which was destroyed.

While the Nazis escaped, the Reichsbannerman and his wife jumped to the street. Each was injured in falling. Eight families were made homeless by the blaze.

CLASHES CLOSE ROAD HEARINGS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Controversy between Highway Department officials and legislative investigators having reached a high pitch in public hearings, the next session will be private.

At the conclusion of yesterday's stormy public hearing, department officials and committee members agreed to meet next Monday.

The storm broke yesterday as Representative Morton Witkin, Philadelphia, a member of the committee, charged that the hands of the Highway Department are tied by Gov. Pinchot.

This charge was denied by Secretary Samuel S. Lewis and Samuel Eckels, chief engineer, of the department.

Testimony at the hearing, with the exception of the controversy, was confined to technical details in connection with construction of low-cost paving on rural roads where highway traffic is light and high-cost paving on the main traveled roads.

NEW EDUCATION CODE 'ORPHAN' OF ASSEMBLY

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 23.—Pennsylvania's proposed new school code was characterized on all sides today as the real orphan of the present legislative session.

No party, faction or group of substantial size is willing to uphold it in its entirety and the individuals who support it without "ifs" and "ands" are numerically negligible.

That condition applies to many other bills, but no measure introduced so far this year is considered as significant economically, socially and politically as the school code.

CONSOLIDATION PLAN

The proposal to consolidate more than two thousand districts into 500 has drawn the greatest mass protest, despite the fact that through such merging the Department of Public Instruction estimates a saving of more than $3,000,000 with increased efficiency.

Thousands of others are protesting a cut in subsidies which would result, while another large body is concentrating on opposition to the plan to close four teacher training colleges.

All will admit the efficacy of some parts of the code, but none will support all of it.

The result is a babel of tongues seeking to influence legislative votes that are already split many ways, and threatening disaster for the whole code. Legislators forecast a fight more bitter and protracted even than that looming on jobless aid.

AMENDMENT DANGER

The amendments already proposed are countless and if all those negative in nature were complied with the bill would be reduced to a scrap of paper bearing little more than a title.

The vehement attacks upon the proposed code at the public hearing this week were but an echo of the dissension at the recent state education convention and of the opposition which has been voiced informally.

Initial decisions rest with the House Committee on Education, headed by Representative Thomas B. Wilson, McKean County. Wilson promised some amendments would be made before the measure is reported for House action. He also declared:

"The Legislature will not adjourn and leave the districts to muddle along. There will be relief for the local districts."

There was nothing said about how this will be done or who will make the concessions.

Principals Here Name School Code Objections

Objections to a considerable portion of the proposed new Pennsylvania school code is voiced by a special committee of the Principals' Round Table of Allegheny County in a report submitted to Dr. Charles E. Dickey, superintendent of the county schools. Dr. Dickey is expected to present the principals' objections at a legislative hearing in Harrisburg. They specify:

Methods of combining school districts, adopting school budgets, depending wholly upon local taxes on real estate, charging fees for certification of teachers, dispensing with medical inspection in fourth-class districts, admitting beginning pupils in September and January and liquidating present indebtedness.

SCHOOL CHIEFS TO CONVENE

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 23.—(Universal.)—Educators from Canada, Australia and all parts of the United States will gather in Minneapolis February 25 to March 2 for the sixty-eighth annual convention of the department of superintendence, National Education Association. An attendance of between 8,000 and 9,000 is expected.

The department of superintendence is the professional section of the N. E. A., and its members are in charge of the education of 20,000,000 children.

The program will center around the theme, "New Frontiers in American Life." Serious problems confronting the schools will be taken up in a series of discussions.

Speakers will include well-known economists, college and university professors, scientists, professors of education, superintendents and teachers. Among them will be Howard Scott of technocracy fame, and Jess H. Newton, professor of education, Columbia University.

Just two days after his birthday party, William McCartney, 5, of 220 Jane street, Carnegie, was fatally injured by an automobile in front of 531 East Main street, late yesterday.

The child was taken to the office of Dr. H. A. Klee of 225 East Main street, by the driver, Raymond Hood, 31, of 1414 Lorain street, North Side, according to a Coroner's report. Hood was ordered to appear before the Coroner today to post bond for an inquest.

Odd Matchers Win His $40 in Pennies

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—It cost Wilfred Style, Detroit, $40 to match pennies with two strangers he encountered in the Windy City, he told police.

W. R. HEARST UPHELD ON SALES TAX

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—William Randolph Hearst's plan for restoring America's economic health and assuring against future depressions, laid before the Senate Finance Committee by its chairman, Senator Reed Smoot, drew the following appreciative comment in New York:

Frank L. Polk, attorney and former Secretary of State:

"I think one of the most striking parts of Mr. Hearst's six-point program is his observations on income tax. These are especially timely.

"We have almost reached a point in this country where incomes are no longer a source of taxation.

"The sales tax proposed by Mr. Hearst would undoubtedly be the easiest way to supplement the income of the government. It would spread the burden of taxation so widely that it would not be felt particularly by any one group.

"Personally I do not believe the government could successfully operate all the railroads, as Mr. Hearst advocates, but his program on the whole is thought-provoking and will undoubtedly create the widest kind of interest and discussion."

ECONOMIST SPEAKS

Prof. James C. Bonbright, professor of economics at Columbia University:

"There can be no reasonable doubt that federal expenditures for public works at the present time would be of great benefit to employment and prosperity. The setting aside of funds for this purpose in times of prosperity for use in times of depression should be regularly practised.

"In the present crisis there is no fund, and the only ways of raising one is through bonds or increased taxes. Any increase in taxes, in view of the unbalanced budget, would be unfortunate. The only alternative lies in Mr. Hearst's plan for the issuance of bonds."

Charles H. Strong, secretary of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York:

"I approve Mr. Hearst's sales tax suggestion, but I am predisposed against all forms of inflation. I believe we should face present conditions with tested weapons and not seek a panacea in inflation, which is full of danger and must be dearly paid for later on. I have not had time to study Mr. Hearst's full program, and for that reason must withhold comment on other points in his plan."

Educator Supports Controlled Reflation

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(Universal.)—The followoing comment upon the measures suggested by William Randolph Hearst to alleviate the economic depression was made by Paul H. Douglas, professor at the University of Chicago:

"Although I am not in agreement with Mr. Hearst in his advocacy of a sales tax and a high tariff, I most heartily approve of his statesmanlike advocacy of a large public works program, and of guarded and controlled reflation.

"It is obvious that what we immediately need today is (1) to restore men to work and (2) to start prices upward, so that the margin of profit to business will reappear and so that the burden of fixed debts may be lightened.

"While bank reserves are ample for a large expansion of credit to industry, such loans have in practice not occurred, as I have for nearly three years predicted they would not. This is because in a period of business depression, private business is afraid to borrow and banks afraid to lend.

GOVERNMENT ONLY HOPE

"Apparently the only force which can break this vicious deadlock is the government, whose credit is sound and which also has the power to issue notes. The government should, therefore, to my mind, make large appropriations for slum clearance, the elimination of grade crossings, and for rural electrification and hydro-electric developements.

"This would put men back to work and build up monetary purchasing power in the pockets of consumers which would bring results in increased demand for commodities. It would also create a direct demand for lumber, iron and steel, copper and so on.

"Many people may attack this, as it would mean an unbalanced budget. We should remember, however, that private business does not try to finance extraordinary capital expenditures from current receipts. It instead floats bonds to meet these expenditures. The government can do likewise.

YEARLY BALANCE NEEDLESS

"Further, although the government budget should balance over the period of a major business cycle, it need not and should not balance in each and every year. Instead, its expenditures should expand as private business contracts, and then when prosperity returns and tax receipts increase, government expenditure on public works should be cut to the very bone and the surplus of receipts over expenditures should then be devoted to retiring the bonds and notes issued during the period of depression.

"I think Mr. Hearst has made a very real contribution on these points and I am happy to associate with him on them."

RICHBERG COMMENTS

Others expressing agreement with the general tenor of Mr. Hearst's plan are:

Donald R. Richberg, nationally known attorney, and one especially familiar with the railroad situation:

"Mr. Hearst's letter to the Senate Finance Committee contains some of the most stimulating realistic views on the depression I have yet seen presented. While I cannot agree with him on the subject of income taxation, I must indorse thoroughly his opinion that the depression has resulted largely from inflation of values, overcapitalization and gambling with essential industries in time of prosperity. In fact, my own testimony, which will be presented to the Senate Finance Committee later in the week, is based upon this proposition.

"Mr. Hearst not only points out that purchasing power must be restored and that high standards of living with increased wages and a better distribution of wealth are the means to restore and maintain prosperity, but he also presents a concrete program for public works, reflation and primary attention to our domestic markets which is fundamentally sound.

"His forthright demand for government ownership of railroads will shock only those who do not understand or refuse to face the grave dangers to the whole nation in the present conditions of the railroads."

Roy O. West, former Secretary of the Interior:

"Mr. Hearst has made a rational and clear statement of our economic condition. His proposed remedies should have a most thorough consideration.

"From a hasty reading of his program, I am impressed with his future plans of public building, taxation and home market protection. I have not studied the situation sufficiently to pass upon reflation, farm aid and railroads, although my family and I own and operate farms in the Illinois corn belt, our farms being highly developed and devoted to their best use."

James Hamilton Lewis, Senator from Illinois:

"Mr. Hearst presents a complete program which Congress can study with great respect and put into execution with sure knowledge it means relief and reform."

Democrat Leader Backs Public Works Bond Plan

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—(Universal).—William Randolph Hearst's letter to United States Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, was read with profound interest by the people of Southern California.

The following statements are typical of those widely expressed by civil, business and professional leaders:

Isidore B. Dockweiler, attorney and former Democratic national committeeman for California:

"I am thoroughly in sympathy with the views of Mr. Hearst in his letter.

"There is no question but that we should take care of the unemployed by furnishing work on public projects of magnitude.

"The undertaking should be financed by long-term bonds at a low rate of interest. This is a sound and practical plan.

"I am also in accord with his views to the effect that the government should spend liberally but wisely in times of depression and pay off the obligations it incurs in eras of prosperity.

"Our home markets should be protected, farmers should be given federal aid under proper safeguards, and reasonable reflation, as he outlines it, I believe would be an important step toward correcting present conditions.

"Most particularly am I in favor of the sales tax as a substitute for the present objectionable income tax."

Superior Judge Leon R. Yankwich:

"The theory that economic forces, if given free play, would somehow result in harmony and prosperity for all, does not correspond with present reality.

"We are living in an interrelated world in what someone has called a new feudalism. Our thought for the future must adjust itself to this new concept.

"Mr. Hearst's proposals for recovery indicate that he has sensed this trend. His program abandons the shallow cry of 'less government in business' and substitutes for it a bold plan which calls for the government's direct interference for the purpose of promoting social and economic welfare and overcoming suffering.

"Particularly significant is the fact that Mr. Hearst stresses unemployment as a problem with which the national government must deal. A national program of public works to take up the slack of unemployment has been recognized as a wise policy even by those who would reduce governmental intervention to a minimum.

"I believe with Mr. Hearst that agriculture should receive government aid.

"I trust that the example of Mr. Hearst in proposing a bold program for recovery will be followed by other publishers of national repute. The press will fall into disrepute if it surrenders its function as a moulder of public opinion, its greatest function."

MILK WAR ENDS WITH TRUCE

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The milk markets of Wisconsin were peaceful today for the first time in more than a week as dairymen affiliated with the Wisconsin Co-Operative Milk Pool observed a milk strike truce which is to last until May 1.

Complying with the order of Walter M. Singler, president of the pool, strike pickets lifted their embargo and scattered to their homes in a dozen Eastern Wisconsin counties last night.

While the more belligerent strikers grumbled over the signing of the truce at a time when they said it appeared that their campaign for $1.40 a hundred pounds for milk would soon be won, there were others who hailed the agreement made between Singler and representatives of 20 farm organizations at Madison late yesterday as a victory.

The truce agreement was made after Gov. A. G. Schmedeman had intervened with a promise that difficulties of Wisconsin dairy farmers would be presented by him to President-elect Roosevelt at the conference of governors early in March.

Pa. Musician Gets Inauguration Bid

ELIZABETHVILLE, Pa., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Among the "home folks" to attend the inauguration of President-elect Roosevelt on March 4 will be G. Fred Botts, former Elizabethville music instructor and baritone soloist, who was crippled by infantile paralysis 15 years ago.

Botts, now manager of the Warm Springs, Ga., foundation which the incoming President founded to provide treatment for infantile paralysis victims, was invited by Mr. Roosevelt in 1924 to attend that institution. Since then he has recovered sufficiently to walk with braces and crutches.

Eclipse in Chile Set Tomorrow

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The government observatory had announced today that an eclipse of the sun tomorrow would be 97 per cent total at Valdivia and surrounding southern territory, and 77 per cent total at Santiago and nearby.

Preliminary forecasts were for fair weather in the central portion of the country, but it was doubtful whether it would be clear in the south.

Other representatives will come from Pittsburgh, Canonsburg, Washington, Donora, Connellsville, Jeannette, Johnstown and Greensburg.

Boy Snarls Traffic With 'Father's' Act

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Attired in a three-cornered hat and carrying an American flag, 10-year-old Vincent Moffitt presented his idea of Washington crossing the Delaware, using a scooter instead of a boat, and Evanston's busiest street corners for his act. Traffic was blocked. The police took him home.

DUELING REPEAL ASKED

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Assemblyman Carl Pack, New York Democrat, who has been trying for several years to repeal obsolete laws on the state's statute books, today introduced 16 bills renewing his efforts.

Among the laws named in the bills are those prohibiting dueling, purchase of lands from Indians, hazing in colleges, schools and elsewhere; horse racing near a courthouse and sale of liquor or wines in a courthouse.

Another is an old law which makes a person "who loiters about a building with intent to overhear discourse therein and to print or publish same" guilty of misdemeanor.

Lebanon, for a call and demand freight service between Canonsburg, Washington and Charleroi. O'Brien conducts the Trolley Transfer Service and plans an extension.

RICH INDIAN 'BASHFUL'

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—(INS.)—Jackson Barnett, 91, "The world's richest Indian," was a bashful brave among women of his own tribe on the Oklahoma Reservation.

He loved his pinto pony more than he loved any woman.

These assertions were on file here today in the Government's suit to annul Barnett's marriage to his white wife, Anna Laura Lowe Barnett.

The suit also seeks to return $250,000 worth of real estate to the wealthy Indian.

Former Judge J. W. Winton, of Henrietta, Okla., in a deposition said Barnett once had refused to trade his pinto pony for a $9,000 automobile and had expressed a preference for horses rather than women.

Payless Policeman Loses 110 Pounds

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Police Sergt. Joe Flutterer is a mere shadow of his former self. He used to weigh 325, but now he's down to 215. The police haven't been paid regularly for nine months, but Joe isn't worrying much.

"Yes, sir, the times have been great for me. I tried everything in the old days to reduce and all I did was put on more weight."

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Illness of General Pershing May Delay Radio Debut; Medbury Makes Good

By AIRCASTER

Ted Husing is ill with nose—not mouth—trouble, for a change . . . Gen. Pershing, originally favored for an automobile broadcast series, has linked with a tire company to begin March 15, but the general is ill in Arizona, and may not be well in time . . . It is very likely that J. P. Medbury will continue on with his present sponsor for the full 13 weeks.

The Foamers, who broadcast Sundays out of Chicago, have renewed for a year, but on March 19, the act will become a sketch, featuring a rural newspaper shop . . . Vincent Lopez and band return to the old New York spot March 6, which moves Anson Weeks back to the West Coast.

The Three Public Enemies, who, I had thought, had a swell title for their mad comedy, are making their bow at NBC Sunday night, but under the new name, "The Three Nuts."

Frederick William Wile, the political commentator for CBS, is to speak next month before a Detroit club . . . Today he received a wire from the organization . . . It warned him that all previous "club" microphoners to be engaged have been flops, and advises Wile not to appear before his audience shaky and scared.

From many sources, but mainly in the fan mail, the current funny fellows of the air are being justly censured for using insane asylum jokes and situations, which bring grief to so many relatives of people thus afflicted.

Globe-trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

And letters do pour in about Sandy, the doomed dog, who broadcast with the Globe-Trotter some time ago. What a globe-trotter he was, too! After preparing people all day for his evening appearance Sandy decided that it was all too mysterious for him and refused to talk.

F. S. Robinson, of Beaver, interested in the dog's welfare, sends in a clipping from an out-of-town paper which tells of a case where damages were not allowed when it was the dog's first bite. The same rule applies in Pennsylvania. Every dog is entitled to one bite, and civil cases where a previous bite is not shown are usually non-suited. Sandy's case is different. It is in the criminal courts and civil rules do not necessarily apply.

One listener who would have been intensely interested in Sandy's speech is Brightview Bean Jinx, a puppy. Today is his first birthday and his little master, Freddie Wilson, of Wilkinsburg, wants me to include his name in the birthday greetings because Jinx always listens in.

If you think it strange to broadcast about a dog's birthday, how about Ruby, who wants her cat, Suzanne, greeted over the air. Suzanne, Ruby says, "Will be there and listening."

So-o-oh, if you hear any strange noises, don't be alarmed. That will be the "Globe Growler."

CUBAN THREATS MADE TO GAIN OUTSIDE AID

(Editor's Note—Following is the third of a series of stories based upon a first-hand investigation of present conditions in Cuba. To avoid possible censorship, the articles were written and sent from Miami.)

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

International News Service. (Copyright, 1933, International News Service, Inc.)

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 22.—Some form of American intervention in Cuba before the Roosevelt administration is very old is considered inevitable by most of the responsible business interests in the island—both Cuban and American.

Whether this intervention will take the form of diplomatic pressure to end the terroristic warfare between the Machado government and its implacable enemies, or of armed intervention, remains to be determined by the new administration.

The bitter opposition to President Machado frankly hopes for American intervention.

Cuba today is for all practical purposes under a dictatorship as drastic as at any time in her history.

Illustrative of the opposition's desire for some form of intervention was a recent experience of the British Minister in Havana. He received a letter, anonymous of course, which notified him he was marked for assassination.

The head of one of the largest American business firms in Havana received a letter of similar import.

It is the Cuban youths that give the government most concern. Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of the younger generation of Cubans have joined the opposition to the Machado regime.

Most of the elder leaders of the opposition, like ex-President Mario Menocal, who headed the abortive revolution of 1931, are in exile.

Florist Meeting Set for Tonight

Harry Samson will give the principal address. Mrs. Catherine D. Scheaff, local chairman, said improved service for funerals through closer co-operation will be the objective of members.

MODERN YOUTH 'DISILLUSIONED'

Young people today are gradually becoming disillusioned with religion and seek strength from other sources, according to Lord Snell, formerly under-secretary of state for India in the British government, who is president of the Ethical Societies of America and England.

Lord Snell discussed the object of the American Ethical Union, of which there are about six societies, at the Hotel William Penn yesterday. He spoke last night at the George Washington Palestine Forest Commission in the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue.

There are many persons who are not satisfied that present religious beliefs are final, Lord Snell said. He described the Ethical Society:

"It is a semi-religious, non-theological group attempting to formulate good life without the present beliefs. The Bible is recognized as an informative religious book but we seek equally authoritative sources. We aim to elevate character apart from the speculative beliefs now existing. Even the Book of Revelations is not accepted as final. Newer contributions of science and philosophy cannot fail to cause religious thought."

"The society believes in a form of immortality but not in the accepted religious form. We believe the examples and influences of a person continue to live through the children or the good deeds continue to be an influence."

SOCIETY GIRL HELD SUICIDE

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Police today relaxed their investigation of the death of Miss Mary Fitzgerald, whose body was found Tuesday in Puget Sound, after the parents of the Tacoma Junior League president agreed all clues apparently "point to suicide."

B. E. Buckmaster, spokesman for the Fitzgerald family, said a post-mortem investigation indicated a bruise on the young woman's head apparently was received after she was in the water. An autopsy revealed death was caused by drowning.

The girl's parents had objected to the original police suicide theory and at their request detectives investigated for indications of foul play. No motive for suicide has been established.

MY BEST WAR STORY

By HARRY MELLOR,
2309 Sarah Street, South Side
(C. S. M. Manchester Regiment, 1st Battalion, 3rd Lahore (Indian) Division.

Although a soldier in the English army during the World War, my biggest thrill came at sea on the transport Cameronia, on which we embarked at Marseilles, France, bound for Mesopotamia, Friday, April 13, 1917, with two mine sweepers as escorts.

About 5:30 p. m. Sunday we were torpedoed in the bow, while a party of us were playing "bingo" around the forward hold.

Keeping my head, I went to the middle of the ship, and went up to the boat deck just in time to fall in for a boat that was being swung from the davits.

The ship's engines were still running, and before we realized it, we were on the revolving propellers, part out of the water. Our boat was cut in half by them. Being thrown underneath, I had trouble getting to the surface, but succeeding, I managed to cling to the upturned boat.

The transport went down in half an hour, lifting at the stern, and then gliding down head first. Later, I managed to get into a small boat, drifting about all night, and was picked up by a destroyer next day, and taken to a hospital in Malta, 200 miles away.

(The foregoing story was a prize-winner in the "My Best War Story" contest being conducted by veterans of Allegheny County. True accounts of war experiences may be mailed by veterans, relatives and friends to the "Best Story" Committee, Fulton Theater, Sixth street, Pittsburgh. They must not exceed 300 words. The winner each day will be awarded four tickets to the theater's showing of the war film, "The Big Drive.").

OFFICIALS LOSE COUNTY CARS

County officials, other than elected officers, today had lost their privilege of using county automobiles to go to and from their homes.

The County Commissioners' announcement of the ban followed a recent order against parking in the courthouse yard of any automobiles other than those painted in county colors and bearing the county shield.

The Commissioners are fast stripping from bureau and department heads the cars assigned for their private use. A taxi system has been put into effect and any employe needing a car can obtain one for the time of his business only.

The Commissioners and other elected officials still have cars assigned to them.

The automobiles of the county detectives have been removed from the courtyard, but will be parked in the basement of the new county building. The detective cars are not painted the county brown.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 23.—Charles Early, engineer at a pottery plant at East Palestine, missed work yesterday for the first time in 33 years. Early was sick and unable to pull the cord on the 6 a. m. whistle which he has done since 1899.

DAVIS TO FACE VISITING JUDGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—United States Attorney George Z. Medalie announced today that a North Carolina judge would come here to preside at the lottery trial of United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, and others scheduled to begin Monday.

The jurist is Johnson Jay Hayes, of Greensboro, N. C., who was appointed a Federal Judge by President Coolidge in 1927. The crowded condition of the local courts was given as the reason for bringing in Judge Hayes.

First trial of Senator Davis, which ended in a mistrial, was held before Federal Judge Francis J. Coleman, of New York. In that trial Davis was the sole defendant, his trial having been put ahead in an effort to get it out of the way before election, but this time he will have three co-defendants. They are Theodore G. Miller, an official of the Loyal Order of Moose, of which Davis is director general, and Bernard McGuire and Raymond Walsh, promoters.

The defendants are charged with violation of the Federal lottery laws in connection with alleged interstate shipment of tickets to charitable enterprises of the Moose, which the government contends were actually lottery tickets.

ARSON CHARGES HOLD TWO

Accused of having conspired to burn three four-room houses in Catzel avenue, North Versaille Township, in order to collect insurance, Urno Karan and Stanley Wisnisky, of 595 Catzel avenue were today committed to jail on charges of arson and conspiracy before Alderman J. S. Sharp, of East Pitsburgh.

The informations were made by County Detective Peter A. Connors, assigned to bomb and arson work.

Connors alleges that on February 8, the two men set fire to the houses to recover $6,500 in insurance, which Connors declares is in excess of the value of the property.

Cipher From New Fan Looks Fairly Easy

By KENNETH A. NAGEL

Here's another original cipher. It's submitted by Henry C. Half, of 1421 Denniston avenue. He's a new cipher fan.

This shouldn't take you old fans very long. It will stick quite a few of the newer fans. One thing may help you—and that's a typewriter. Now let's see what you can do.

Mr. Half writes:

"Many of my friends have sent in ciphers and told me how easy they are to solve. So I am trying my idea of a sticker. Mine is based on somewhat the idea of Cipher 54, but twisted around a bit."

You had an easy time with Cipher No. 61, didn't you? You took the first letter of every word and found the answer to be: "Find a way or make one."

Ours was more or less a strange interlude
Fraught with fanciful, fiery phrases;

With its sharp mosaics, twisted mazes;

Studded with soft sighs and short-breathed dazes.
A design for living quite insistent
That we alter skeins to sombre phases,

Newspaperman Stuff

The trip back on the Florida Special seemed shorter because Publisher David Stern talked shop. Mr. Stern controls two papers, the Camden (N. J.) Courier-Post and the Philadelphia Record. He said he never met a real good newspaperman "who had grown up." And that if his editors didn't come in at least once a day and exclaim: "Oh, boy! Have I a swell story!" then Mr. Stern would think they need long vacations. Without pay, that is.

The Philadelphia Record, by the way, was given several orchids in the February American Mercury for being the "liveliest newspaper in Philadelphia." And the office clown, who was just looking over our shoulder, observed:

"Huh. That's like being the best-looking stiff in a morgue!"

Hehehch

Sid Weiss reports that Al Boasberg's pet gag is the one about the actor who was reading "The Life of Abraham Lincoln."

"Have you come to the part where he's assassinated?" asked Boasberg.

"Shhh," shished the intellectual, "don't tell me!"

Add Similies—Len Goslos':

"It was as distasteful to him as an apology or a retraction is to a columnist."

Columnists are like last moment news flashes in the paper; a large head but little else. (The other guys, you know!)

Me, Too!

Ysabelle has legs like this( )
Genevieve's go thusly) (
Penelope's are all amiss) !

Add Little Ironies

By Al Klein: Mayor Cermak, of Chicago getting shot in Florida!

We've Met Her

Art Arthur encountered one of those girls.

"Do you like books?" he asked.

"What color?" was the retort.

By Way of Report

Funny thing about the Roosevelt shooting attempt is that none of the reporters covering the President-elect's party were at the scene. The only newshound there was a young reporter for the Miami Herald (whose name I wish I knew), who scooped the world on the story.

All the crack men from the Northern gazettes were already in the press car of the special train waiting to take Roosevelt back North. Roosevelt had told them to get on the train and wait there for him to finish his speech—so that there would be no delay in starting home.

"I'm not going to say much or be long, boys," he is supposed to have told them, "and you won't miss anything."

The news broke for them, however, when a stenographer sitting next to Mrs. Gill, a victim, rushed to the train to tell them the biggest story of the year had just occurred. And did they sweat!!!

Nifties

By David Murray: The trouble with the average college graduate is that he knows all the answers—if you ask him the right questions. Our idea of a hard-headed businessman is a guy who doesn't mind if his secretary is bow-legged . . . . Every day the tabloids are filled with people who thought they could get away with it . . . A movie ham is a guy who would give you the shirt off his back—if he was certain that the photo would make page one.

Transient

I tremble at the thought that you will go,
Will go and leave me desolate
with grief,
And I shall wander lonely in the wind,
A vagrant, broken leaf.
You are still here;
Your blessed face, your lips,
Your shining eyes look at me with a smile;
And when you go I shall be glad,
be glad,
That you were with me for a little while.

—Anne Robinson.

Form of Criticism

It was overheard in the reception room of a radio station and the loud speaker was offering a dull broadcast.

"What's going on next?" a listener asked another.

"What's going on next!" was the irritable one's retort. "What's going on NOW???"

And Jack Osterman!

Jules Levine's chorus girl friend told him she'd love to be a reporter.

"Why?" he queried.

"Think of all the fun you can have," she replied, "seeing accidents happen, people getting hurt, buildings burning down and things."

Novelette

The local police deserve a salute for this, it seems to me, even if they did break a law themselves. Not long ago a young girl of excellent family and good reputation was attacked by four street hoodlums, who left her on deserted avenue. She had presence of mind, and remembered the license number of the car in which they drove.

She gave the number to the cops, who by hard work finally rounded up the quartet. The first thing they did was to invite the girl's fiance to the hoosegow and then they permitted him to take them one by one and beat the fiends into insensibility.

Dr. Tyson Thinks Gangster Pictures Do Not Foster Crime

By GEORGE SEIBEL

So much has been heard from reformers and educators about the evil influence of the Talkies on youth, that it is refreshing to hear from a university professor that this evil influence does not exist. Dr. Francis D. Tyson, Pitt professor of economics, happens to be chairman of the resolutions committee of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. Instead of being wildly excited about crime films, gangster epics and racketeer dramas, he calmly announces:

"The present popularity of the racket and crime film should not be deplored. These pictures represent, for the most part, a real effort to get away from the defensive reactions of ignorance. We need the vital aid of the motion picture in the struggle against crime, and it may be used to present fully the complex of human motives and distortions of life that lie back of criminal conduct."

Mr. Seibel

This confirms the suspicion I have always harbored that "Othello" never caused jealous husbands to kill their wives, that "Hamlet" did not promote the assassination of uncles or stepfathers, and that "King Lear" has had a very slight influence on the laws regarding wills and estates.

AFTER BETTER PICTURES

Dr. Tyson says the National Board of Review is seeking to enlist support of schools, churches and community associations in lending their endorsement to better pictures. By "better pictures," Dr. Tyson means pictures which possess artistry, instructiveness, and intelligence as well as entertainment value.

Through organized support of worth-while pictures, he thinks, producers would be led to eliminate from their programs the claptrap, sentimental, over-sexed stories which now so frequently clutter up the screen.

He thinks the bankers who have taken hold of some big producing companies are not the evil geniuses depicted by Upton Sinclair, whose book about William Fox makes it appear that a Wall street conspiracy is menacing Hollywood. On the contrary, the bankers have eliminated wasteful methods and insisted upon better wares. The praise accorded to "Cavalcade," recently seen here, would seem to be due to the financiers who insisted that art could be made to pay if mixed with some brains.

OVERDONE SUPERLATIVES

Another phase of the moving picture industry he touches upon incidentally. This is the verbal extravagance of the advertising. Every film is proclaimed to be a super - super - something-or-other. There are no great pictures; they're all greatest. Old-style circus bills look like shrinking violets compared with these screaming forecasts.

No business that advertises in this style could hold its customers very long. Attracted by explosive adjectives, the people find the reality disappointing. The result is that they lose faith in advance praise. If the Day of Judgment were advertised on the screen for next week, the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse would rouse only a mild interest in the audience. Languidly people might say, "I'd like to see that," but if the weather's nice they'll take a run into the country. The end of the world has been announced too often—it will keep till next week.

'The Big Drive,' Fulton Film, Verifies Sherman Idea

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Fulton Theater, in "The Big Drive," has an attraction that will crowd the house during the time of its engagement, judging by the capacity audiences that yesterday attended the first screenings of this assemblage of official motion pictures of the World War. They represent activities of both Central and Allied powers engaged in the conflict, and their nature constitutes a bar against critical analysis from a dramatic standpoint. Taken as a whole "The Big Drive" is a summation of the greatest war in history, viewed from many angles. It drives home, with terrible force, the epic definition of war given by General Sherman.

In chronological order, it traces the conflict from the beginning to the end, showing the invasion of Belgium by the German Army, the battles of the Marne and other rivers, concluding with depiction of the Americans in action in the final and decisive engagements, including that of the Argonne. In its survey, it gets to all fronts, Russian, Italian and the Near East, but the greater part of the action, of course, is in Belgium and Northern France.

It is impossible, even with the aid of this picture, to envision the vast scope of the World War, but "The Big Drive" gives one something of an idea. In the mud of its trenches, the roar of its big guns, the demolition of towns and terrain by exploding shells, the mending of the injured at field dressing stations, the grim struggle not to surrender one's life in hand to hand trench fighting, and a thousand other bits of realism, it tells the story of the heroic daring of men of all armies. It is impartial in its story.

That is made vocal in a descriptive talk synchronized with the progress of the film.

Last De Cou Travelogue Listed for Tonight

"Fascinating Egypt" is the subject for the closing Branson De Cou Travelogue in Carnegie Music Hall tonight. Many of the views will be shown to the accompaniment of Oriental music.

Madge Evans Cast for Triangle

BY HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23. — As things are going now, Madge Evans will find her philosophy subjected to a prolonged test.

The blonde star recently declared she will never marry until she is ready to quit Hollywood and return to the stage.

Such a turn to her career becomes more remote every day. Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer has selected her to play opposite Robert Montgomery in "Made on Broadway," a triangle story about a public relations counsel (they don't want to say publicity man), his wife and a pretty would-be suicide, whom the hero rescues and builds into a Broadway star. Madge plays the wife and Mae Clarke, as remarked here before, will be the other woman.

"Made On Broadway" will be directed by the experienced Harry Beaumont, who was responsible for several of Joan Crawford's early successes.

The picture will be Lucien Hubbard's first producing job at M-G-M and will get into production two weeks from the time of its purchase. Hollywood is stepping lively.

Odd about Jack La Rue getting his first big break in a role that George Raft walked out on. La Rue was brought to Hollywood by Howard Hughes to play the role of the bodyguard in "Scarface." They found he was taller than Paul Muni and gave the part to George Raft. It made him famous. The Raft-Paramount dispute remains unsettled. Georgie doesn't seem to be worrying. He was at the Beverly Wilshire Sunday night with red-headed Jocelyn Lee, who's just back from Paris. Sammy Finn, Raft's constant companion, made the party a three-some.

The Beverly Wilshire, by the way, is the spot for star-gazing on a Sunday night. Joan Crawford was there with Doug, Jr., Franchot Tone and Jerry Asher. Maureen O'Sullivan was with Johnny Weissmuller (but the other night at Erich Von Stroheim's party, it was John Farrow). . . . It looks as if the Mary Duncan-"Laddy" Sanford friendship is on again. They were dancing to Gus Arnheim's music.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Seats are on sale today in the Nixon boxoffice for the first stage play in several weeks, to open next Monday as the fourth subscription offering of the American Theater Society. This will be a new comedy, "Both Your Houses," by Maxwell Anderson, whose last play was "Elizabeth the Queen." Like the latter, "Both Your Houses," will be a Theater Guild production. The cast will be headed by Walter C. Kelly and Mary Philips.

"The Ivory Door," by A. A. Milne, will be produced by the Department of Drama, Carnegie Institute of Technology, for a week, opening next Saturday night, the curtain being set to rise at 8:15 o'clock. It will be given in the theater of the College of Fine Arts, under the direction of E. W. Hickman.

The judges are still working on the 11 manuscripts submitted in the annual one-act play contest of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement. Later the winners will be presented by acting groups of the settlement, where, at present, 23 groups are rehearsing plays of one to three acts in length. The Children's Theater of the settlement will give two short plays Saturday evening, under the direction of Alma Mulholland.

TROTH BROKEN BY HOPE DAVIS

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Miss Hope Harding Davis, 18-year-old daughter of the late Richard Harding Davis, said today her engagement to the Viscount Jacques de Riviere, of Paris, had been broken, by mutual consent. She said:

"The engagement was privately entered into in Paris last September, and was not generally know about here."

The Viscount is a son of the Count and Countess de Riviere, and the title, Miss Davis said, goes back to the time of the Crusades.

Miss Davis' mother was Bessie McCoy Davis, who became famous as the "Yama Yama Girl" of the play, "Three Twins," which was a hit in New York many years ago. When she reaches 21 she will inherit about $150,000, the estate of her parents. Miss Davis' guardian is Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson.

Miss Davis is an art student, and she said today she will return shortly to Paris to continue her studies there.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

An amusinz disturbance at the Stage and Play's production of Harriet Avery Gaul's "Vamp Till Ready" at the Twentieth Century Club—a young girl in the balcony dropped her beaded evening bag, just missing Mary Louise Succop's head!

It was startling, didn't you think, to see smart, modish Louise Evans as the maid in the play, with straying raven locks and a red and white checked cotton frock?

Louise is quite an artistic young woman—her "maid" part was a delightful bit, and she's studying sculpture at Carnegie Tech's Art School, and has a painting in the Associated Artists' exhibit again this year.

And weren't those lounging pajamas trick that Madeline McClintock wore in the play? Particularly the rose-colored crepe ones with long, full sleeves, gathered into a tight-fitting band at the wrist. Miss McClintock's voice is a delight to her audience.

Mrs. George McC. Kountz was there to see her son, Benjamin Kountz, act; Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, her daughter, Clara Dorothea, and Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans, her daughter, Louise.

NOW GET RESULTS —WHITER TEETH
from the toothpaste you use

MONDAY... 10 a. m.
A NEW DRESS, A WAVE AND A FACIAL. ALL SET FOR THE PARTY BUT I WON'T BE ABLE TO SMILE... MY TEETH ARE SO UGLY AND OFF-COLOR.
CHEER UP... DO AS I SAY ... AND YOUR TEETH WILL LOOK WHITER BY WEDNESDAY NIGHT.
TUESDAY... 10 a. m.
YOU WERE RIGHT, DEAR. KOLYNOS IS MARVELOUS! MY TEETH LOOK WHITER ALREADY.
WEDNESDAY... 10 p. m.
YOU'RE GORGEOUS! I'M GOING TO SEE A LOT MORE OF THAT FLASHING SMILE OF YOURS.
3 DAYS AGO YOU WOULD NOT HAVE SAID THAT!

YES, QUICK RESULTS

START brushing your teeth with Kolynos. In just a few days they'll look whiter—shades whiter. They'll feel much cleaner. Here's the reason: Kolynos does what ordinary toothpastes can't do. As it removes ugly stain and tarnish—it foams into every tiny crevice and kills millions of germs that are the known cause of most tooth and gum troubles.

Thus Kolynos gives RESULTS YOU CAN SEE. Cleaner, whiter teeth. Healthier looking gums. Give up incompetent ways of brushing and start using the Kolynos technique—a half-inch of this remarkable dental cream on a dry brush twice a day. It's the better, quicker way to cleaner, whiter teeth—try it.

KOLYNOS DENTAL CREAM

ORANGE IN SOFTENED TONES TO BE FAVORED SUMMER COLOR

ORANGE—in a grayed, softened version—promises to be an important color for spring and summer. Stylists, who watch carefully the color which smart women take up early in the season, declare that it will probably be the outstanding color for sports clothes during the coming summer months.

IT IS already appearing, in its more sober tones for daytime clothes. The orange used in the fashion houses for sports costumes has a yellow cast, but those few early-spring suits and coats which have just made their bows are of an orange that leans toward a light brown.

* * *

BUT NO matter what tone of orange is used in any of the costumes—sports dress or town suits—all of them are made on extremely simple lines. The color in itself is so new to fashion that it is used in only the simplest media.

THERE IS, for example, the dress-and-coat combination pictured in today's sketch. Both coat and dress are made with the minimum of elaboration. The only decorative touch on the entire costume is in the moleskin trimming on the coat—which is, after all, a sobering touch. The fur is used for the buttoned collar and for the belt.

* * *

THE DRESS, like the coat, is of jersey; but unlike the coat, which is on straight lines, the dress is cut with bias portions around the shoulders and back. The bodice and belt are in one piece, the belt tying the bodice together, at the center-front, then circling the waist to be fastened at the center-back.

A PRACTICAL PLAN for Meeting Your Tax and Insurance Bills

WE SUGGEST the wisdom of dividing the annual amount of your tax or life insurance bills by fifty-two and depositing that sum weekly in a Savings Account exactly as in a Christmas Club.

This plan will remove the financial strain of large annual or semi-annual payments, and will contribute to your peace of mind, because you know that you are gradually preparing for payments which must be made.

Such an arrangement is also economical. Your deposits will earn interest and enable you to take advantage of the discount and avoid penalties in the case of your tax bill.

Such accounts are welcomed by us in any amount, either at the main office or at any of our seven conveniently located branches.

Leadership Held Need by D.A.R. Speaker

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

In telling the Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, "What Education Ought to Do for Us," the Rev. Dr. Boyd Edwards, head master of Mercersburg Academy, said America needs leadership and will never get it until men and women are intelligent enough to obey. And he spoke of "learning how to have a good time without going anywhere."

Dr. Edwards enlarged upon Glenn Frank's idea of what a college education should make of a man: "A Democrat towards his own world, a Puritan towards his own conduct and an aristocrat towards his own work." A Democrat (not in the party sense), is one who has learned to say "we," and it is the widening of this principle across oceans and language and boundary lines that makes for a happy world. America, he went on, is the largest civil experiment in the world in saying "we," and future history will judge whether she has kept on saying it.

The challenge and threat of the oncoming generation is not that they shall do something wicked, but that they shall do something cheap, he said. To be an aristocrat towards one's work means to believe in the excellent in spirit and performance. What America needs is not a race of architects but of carpenters, not sculptors but stone masons and not railroad presidents but section hands.

Summing up, he said education in the broader field beyond college ought to teach men and women to find, furnish, fulfill, free and forget themselves. And in fulfilling there must be choice as to which self is to be expressed. If parents had settled the problem of freeing themselves, it wouldn't be so hard for children, he remarked, adding that the freedom needed is the kind that has been disciplined so that social consequences are happy.

Mrs. William J. Crittenden, chapter regent, introduced the state regent, Mrs. William H. Alexander, of Monongahela, and there was a fine musical program by Cass Ward Whitney, accompanied by Mrs. John E. Nelson. Russell Spillman spoke for the city manager plan.

The occasion was the chapter's annual Washington's Birthday luncheon in the Hotel Schenley.

A., on March 8, will entertain the 100 members of the ticket committee at tea in her home tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Rogal's aides are Mrs. I. Oseroff, chairman of tickets, and the vice chairmen, of tickets, and her vice chairman, Mrs. Sigmund Arnold, Mrs. Max Meltzer and Mrs. Louis Golomb.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengué (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengué by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic balms, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

JAIL BROTHERS FACING 17 CHARGES

Victims of Robberies Identify Pair at 'Stand-Up'

Two bandit suspects, Lawson Christy, 28, and his brother, Harry, 36, of 174 Wabash avenue, West End, were taken to jail today to await disposal of 17 charges involving highway robbery, kidnaping and felonious assault, following a "standup" in the county detective bureau.

The brothers were arrested early yesterday after they are alleged to have shot Miss Dorothy Ulm, 21, McKeesport school teacher, in an attempted holdup near her home, 1308 Sumac street.

PAIR IDENTIFIED

At the "standup" today, the pair was identified by William Hillgartner, 1808 Brownsville road, and Edna May Lanz, 1640 Westmont avenue, both of Carrick, as the men who held them up February 15, and took a wrist watch and diamond ring.

Thomas H. Enscoe, 104 Annabelle street, Mt. Washington, identified them as the bandits who held him up on the ramp of the Liberty Bridge, took $15 and drove away in his machine.

In both instances informations were made before Alderman Thomas M. Geary, charging highway robbery.

MORE CHARGES

Fifteen additional informations were made today before Alderman James J. Lundis, of McKeesport.

Anna Mae Stumpf, of 5616 Penn avenue, who was kidnaped by bandits a week ago after she and her escort, J. Donald Ferguson, Jr., of 916 Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg, had been held up on Saw Mill Run boulevard, identified the two, who, she said, drove her to Crafton, where she was released, unmolested.

D. S. LIGGETT, REALTOR, DIES

Dudley S. Liggett, active figure for many years in Pittsburgh real estate circles, died today at his home at 6216 Howe street following a brief illness of pneumonia.

He was first vice president of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board. He began his real estate work in 1897 when he formed the firm of Liggett and Goehring with offices at 417 Fourth avenue. He acted as agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in large deals on Forbes street.

Volpe Case Suspect Before Italian Court

The request of the United States government for the extradition of Giuseppe Spinelli, wanted here in connection with the gangland slaying of Johnny, Jimmy and Arthur Volpe a year ago, was being argued today in the Court of Appeals at Naples, Italy. A decision is expected within a few days. The defense, in an oral argument, contended that Spinelli was innocent and was entitled to trial in Italy rather than in the United States.

B. & O. Agency at Harmony Debated

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company's plan to make Harmony, Pa., a non-agency station, thoday met opposition from E. A. Shaffer, th the Order of Railway Telegraphers. Shaffer, before the Public Service Commission, said it would mean the discontinuance of a telegrapher there. The company claimed lack of revenue was responsible for the contemplated change.

Two Die as Flames Ruin Flying School

Carnegie and Frick Had Different Views About Labor Troubles

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
by BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

That there were two Homestead strikes is a fact that has slipped the popular memory, yet the two were closely related. Carnegie had persuaded his Braddock workers to adopt his favorite "sliding scale," and, in 1889, the time had come he believed to introduce the same system in Homestead. But the Amalgamated Association, more powerful at Homestead than in any other Carnegie mill, objected to changes in existing wages or in the method of calculating them.

Unlike the Edgar Thomson disagreement, the Homestead strike of 1889 came in the season when Carnegie was in Europe. He sailed in April, leaving the situation in the discretion of William L. Abbott, chairman of Carnegie, Phipps & Co. The Amalgamated Association and Mr. Abbott were soon involved in an apparently hopeless deadlock, and, on July 1, the strike began.

Disregarding Carnegie's favorite program Mr. Abbott attempted to reopen the works with non-union men. Strikers met the trains bringing the detested "scabs" into Homestead and gave them a tumultuous reception. The interlopers were thrown out of the cars, knocked down and subjected to all kinds of physical abuse. The most fortunate were a few who escaped to the hills, followed by brickbats. Strangers in Homestead with unsatisfactory accounts of their presence were beaten into unconsciousness.

The Sheriff of Allegheny County, after a furtive manifestation of courage, retired in terror. He appeared at the works with 120 deputies, was met by a mob of strikers, and, after a few words, noiselessly slunk away.

Mr. Abbott, evidently fearing disastrous consequences, made peace with the men. Though one item of the Carnegie contention, the sliding scale, was gained, the strikers, in their own estimation and in that of most observers, were the victors. They celebrated the settlement with a wild jollification and the Amalgamated Association interpreted the triumph as fixing them forever in control of the Homestead works.

Carnegie Displeased

Carnegie was absent in Germany; Mr. Abbott, in a newspaper interview, declared that he had ended the strike without using the cable, but that Carnegie would not reverse his action. While Carnegie's letters to Mr. Abbott support this statement, they disclose also that he regarded the whole contest without satisfaction — as an event full of danger for the future. "I understand how trying your position was," he writes Mr. Abbott from Berlin, August 7, 1889. "The great objection to the compromise is of course that it was made under intimidation. Our men in other works now know that we will 'confer' with law breakers. At this distance one can be very brave no doubt; I don't like this feature at all, at all! It seems to me that a curt refusal to have anything to do with these men would have brought matters right in less time than to you seems possible."

The great mistake, Carnegie believed, was that Mr. Abbott and his associates had not followed the course he had himself adopted at Edgar Thomson the year before: that of closing the works, refraining from employing new men and waiting until a settlement could be reached. It was his hope that mistakes like this would not be made should another situation arise. In any future difficulty the policy Carnegie had so long advocated and so successfully practiced should be scrupulously observed. "Whenever we are compelled to make a stand," he now wrote Mr. Abbott, "we shall have to shut down and wait, as at Edgar Thomson, until part of the men vote to work. Then it is easy. I am glad, however, that we shall have three years' peace under the sliding scale."

Carnegie's hatred of violence in labor disputes was merely

Await Developments In West View Feud

As members of the West View Parent-Teachers Association sought a ruling from the State Board of Education upon the legality of the appointment of Robert McKee to fill the place of the ousted Supervising Principal H. N. Hennon, another group today expected to make an announcement relative to the protest-school and taxpayers' strike. McKees was named by the board at an executive session.

EXTORTION LAID TO YOUTH

Accused of attempting to extort money from a man who had befriended him, Peter Yepko, 22, of Lorain, O., today was held for court by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Calvin M. King, 5868 Solway street, senior counselor of the Boys' Club, 4412 Butler street, testified Yepko yesterday accepted three $1 bills which detectives had marked.

Several weeks ago, King testified, Yepko had accosted him, asked for help, saying he was expecting money with which to return home. King said he befriended the man, took him to his home and gave him clothing and money.

Two weeks ago he said Yepko accosted him near his home and demanded money, threatening to frame a story. King said he communicated with Detectives Sol Fromme and Joseph Jackson, who advised he arrange to make the payment. When the money was paid yesterday, it was testified, the detectives arrested Yepko. Detectives alleged Yepko was complaining about the size of the payment.

Dirt Farmers Rout Cameras With Snow

FAIRMONT, Minn., Feb. 23.—(INS.)—A barrage of snowballs from the hard fists of dirt farmers in a crowd of 1,500 at the courthouse lawn here today to hear protests against farm foreclosures, routed cameramen attempting to make pictures from the judge's chamber above the courtroom. Windows were shattered and riots were threatened.

STOWE PLANS TAX STRIKE

Their demands for a three-mill reduction in township taxes refused, residents of Stowe Township today had given their approval to a taxpayers' strike.

The action was taken at a meeting last night in the Stowe Township Junior High School auditorium.

The commissioners had offered a one and one-half-mill reduction which was rejected.

C. L. Eckard was named chairman of the strike committee. He is being assisted by M. A. Socha, A. Arkoski, John Sauers and Mrs. A. W. Shea

Services Are Held For Sister Annina

Funeral services were held today for Sister Annina, 80, in St. Xavier's chapel, St. Xavier's Academy, where she died Tuesday. Sister Annina, formerly Miss Irene Cantwell before she entered the religious order, was born in Youngstown, O., and entered the Mercy Order at 18, upon her graduation from St. Xavier's Academy, where she later resided for 40 years.

She leaves a sister, Mrs. J. C. Low, of Los Angeles; a half-brother, William Kirk, of Buffalo, N. Y., and a step-sister, Miss Agnes Kirk, of Latrobe.

WOMAN SAVED AT FIRE

Awakened by a neighbor when their home at 419 East North avenue was discovered on fire early today, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Enfield, an aged couple, were led to safety through smoke-filled hallways.

As Mrs. Enfield reached the first-floor landing, she collapsed and had to be carried from the building by her rescuer, Edward Flynn, of 415 East North avenue. She had been partially overcome by smoke.

The fire, which caused an estimated loss of $1,000, according to firemen, was discovered by a passerby, who awakened Flynn.

Youth Jumps When Motorcycle Crashes

Lawrence McCafferty, 23, of 1323 South Main street, Sharpsburg, jumped in time to save himself from possible serious injury just before his motorcycle crashed through two plate glass windows of Autenreiths' Dollar Store, Butler and Main streets, shortly before noon today.

His brakes failed as he was driving down Main street hill, McCafferty told police. Lawrence Wagner, manager of the store, said about $200 damage resulted to windows and merchandise.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 3.

Well for breakfast this morning we got the new cabinet officers. Cordell Hull—a mighty fine, able man. Ever since I been going to political conventions, no matter who the rest of the world nominated, Jefferson, Jackson, Wilson, Smith or Roosevelt, Tennessee went for Cordell Hull. Their loyalty has been rewarded. Secretary of State is quite a chore in these times. This fellow Woodin that has inherited the deficit, I don't know him, but I along with everybody rush to offer him condolence. Accepting receivership of the U. S. also is no small chore. Swanson for the Navy post is ideal. He did inherit a navy, if Congress don't kill it with no appropriations. YOURS, WILL.

Will Rogers.

Equalization Seen As Lower Tax Aid

H. C. Workmaster, member of the board for revision and assessment of taxes, speaking before the Homestead Tax Payers' Association last night, said the only hope for lower taxes in Allegheny County lies in equalized assessments. He said:

"Under the new tax board preferred assessments are out. Already $3,000,000 worth of property heretofore unassessed has been added to the tax books. The total value of property exempted from taxation illegally in the past far exceeds that figure."

Japs Don't Want War—All They Desire Is China

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

The Japanese prove they don't want war in Manchuria. They've asked the Chinese to leave quietly.

If the Chinese quit peacefully there will be no trouble. Of course, the Chinese can say they were there first. But we consider the Japs made them a very fair proposition.

Strange that the League of Nations didn't think of the idea. You could stop all wars that way. Have the armies march on the battle field on the stagger plan.

That way they would never meet. They could still borrow our money. Which seems to be the idea of all foreign scuffles.

The Chinese have 24 hours to think over the proposition. We advise them to take it. It's the best offer they've got so far.

FIRST WOUNDED VET BURIED

The first American soldier in an American army unit, wounded in France, was buried in Allegheny Cemetery.

John W. Tripp, 58, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Tripp, of Pittsburgh, was struck by shrapnel September 27, 1917, while a sergeant of the 11th Engineers, building a railroad track for the 5th British Army. Quoting the Trench and Camp, official publication of Camp Union, Long Island, N. Y.:

"The 11th Engineers was the first American organization to go to the front and Tripp was the first man in the regiment to be wounded."

Mr. Tripp died last week in Redding, Cal., and his body was returned this morning for burial. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Nancy Tripp King, and a brother, Herbert, of Atlanta, Ga.

Approve Resolution Allowing Tax Suits

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The Hare resolution under which 26 states, including Pennsylvania, could sue the federal government for $423,000,000 was approved today 10 to 4 by the House Judiciary Committee.

That money represents the amount collected by the federal government in 1866, 1867 and 1868 in direct taxes.

Police Trap, Shoot Petter Party Bandits

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Two patrolmen parked their car on an unlighted Lakewood side street in the manner of "highway petters" and early today wounded and captured one of two men who attempted to hold them up.

Eighteen pistol shots flashed in the darkness as Patrolmen Ralph R. Hall, 42, and Robert R. Corbin, 30, exchanged fire with the robbers within 20 feet.

3 Pitcairn Girls Jailed in East End

Three Pitcairn girls were held for further investigation today by Magistrate Charles F. Papale in East End Police Court in connection with shoplifting in East End. The girls, arrested yesterday, are Helen Woodring, 25; Jane Freeman, 21, and Margaret Ryan, 22, all of Kenny street, Pitcairn.

PROSPECT SEEN FOR REDUCTION TO CONSUMER

Washington Solicitor Points to P. S. C. Ruling on Profit

New charges to substantiate the complaint of consumers served by the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company came forth today as D. I. McAlister, City Solicitor for Washington, Pa., asserted the company is charging a profit for gas it buys at an excessive figure from the Hope Natural Gas Company, Standard Oil subsidiary.

The Public Service Commission, McAlister pointed out, has ruled that companies may not ask a profit on gas bought at prices in excess of the open market quotations.

WIDE MARGIN SHOWN

The Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, he pointed out, is under contract to buy from the Hope Natural Gas Company of West Virginia at a rate in excess of 30 cents for 1,000 cubic feet. The consumer pays 63 cents a thousand.

The Manufacturers, which has admitted it is mixing artificial gas of low heating unit content with its natural gas of high heat content, purchases from Hope, McAlister understands, an amount equal to its total domestic consumption. The company serves an area of 450,000 population.

McAlister pointed out that the Manufacturers company is thus paying more than 12 to 15 cents too much for the Hope gas.

If domestic consumption is equal to half its output, the utility's payments are in excess of 6 to 7½ cents too high on an average of its purchases, he declared.

LOOKS FOR REDUCTION

By subtracting this excess from its retail price, the Washington attorney asserts the firm could, by abandoning the contract, slash its rates from 63 cents a thousand cubic feet to 56 or 57 cents without loss. He believes that reduction at least will be ordered by the Public Service Commission after presentation of the facts.

McAlister's statement came today in connection with the protest more than 25 communities launched last week in a meeting here when it was charged that a goodly percentage of the firm's gas is artificial and of low heating content.

This gas, it was charged, could not be burned efficiently in appliances which in this district are commonly adjusted for natural gas.

MAY AFFECT METERS

Meanwhile, a charge came from another source that artificial-natural mixtures, being of lower specific gravity than pure natural gas, will cause faulty reading of meters in the homes of consumers.

The meters are adjusted to gas of a specific gravity higher than that of the mixture, it was declared.

CAPITAL, LABOR JOIN IN POTTERS' 'BUY AMERICAN' FETE

DEFENSE OF U. S. PRODUCTS URGED

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Feb. 23.—Men and women of all stations gathered together in the heart of the American ceramic industry last night, and in the name of "Buy American," paid tribute to the birthdate of George Washington.

City and business buildings, automobiles and factories were decorated with "Buy American" signs. The stage of Potters' hall, and the hall itself, were fitted up in the national colors, accentuating posters which proclaimed that the trades and labor council and the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters had indorsed the project.

The dinner was under the auspices of the Potters' brotherhood, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and the labor council. James Duffy, president of the brotherhood, presided as toastmaster.

OWNERS, WORKERS JOIN

Mingling among the speakers as guests were owners of the potteries and the workmen—symbolic of the unbroken peace in the industry since 1894. Speakers were Will T. Blake, editor of the Potters Herald; James H. Grafton, president of the trades council; J. M. Wells, general manager of the Homer Laughlin China Company, of Newell, W. Va.; Ross C. Purdy, secretary of the American Ceramic Society of Columbus, O., and V. V. Kelsey, vice president of Consolidated Feldspar Company, Newark, N. J.

Mr. Wells spoke of the value of co-operative campaigning for the purchase of American-made products, declaring:

"When capital and labor walk hand in hand into the halls of Washington, then will the nation's legislators know that protection of American industries is a serious thing desirable for the economic structure of the land. Not often do the two forces unite, but when they do, action follows. In this we are united, we must buy American."

CITES EUROPEAN DRIVES

Mr. Kelsey told of the European campaigns and the intense national spirit behind the movement in England, France and elsewhere. He said:

"There are some international bankers and traders who will propagandize the country against Buy American. But no American need be afraid that by buying goods made by his neighbors and fellow Americans will he offend other peoples, for they themselves are highly organized, and have started their own campaigns ahead of us.

"Also, the idea that the United States has held a trade balance is a myth. Commerce reports would indicate that we do, but the balance has been against us for many years when we count in the millions left in foreign lands by our tourists."

Supplementing the speaking program was musical and other entertainment.

In 1911 he was appointed pastor of St. Raphael's, being the first pastor and one of the organizers of that parish, for which he built a grade and a high school, a convent, rectory and temporary church edifice.

He was active in diocesan affairs, was general chairman of the Catholic Educational Campaign in March, 1924, conducted for funds for new educational buildings, and general chairman of the campaign for funds for replacing the Little Sisters of the Poor Home, destroyed by fire several years ago.

He leaves two brothers, Joseph, of Pittsburgh, and Frank Gallagher, of New York, and a sister, Catherine Gallagher, of Pittsburgh.

URGES BOROUGH SMOKE LAWS

Keeping the air of Pittsburgh pure cannot be accomplished unless the surrounding municipalities adopt smoke regulation measures similar to those in Pittsburgh, according to H. B. Meller, chief of the City Bureau of Smoke Regulation, in an address to the Etna-Sharpsburg Rotary Club today.

Meller advised the business men of both communities to pattern their smoke regulation after the Pittsburgh method, as has been done by Wilkinsburg and Dormont.

To meet the difficulties of smoke control, Meller has suggested the creation of so-called air hygiene districts over metropolitan areas. Meller pointed out the futility of a city attempting smoke control when it is hemmed about by a score of factory clusters beyond its jurisdiction. Meller has investigated air pollution for the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

Graham, asserts labels on the bottles are false and that the preparation does not contain ingredients or medical agents effective as a treatment for the disease.

The government will be represented by Assistant United States Attorney Lloyd W. Bryan and J. P. Painter, of Washington, as assistant to the attorney general.

C. E. Miller, of Buffalo, an inspector of the food and drug administration, Department of Agriculture, and Dr. C. R. Stop a COLD the First Day!

Taken Promptly, this Four-Way Remedy Will Usually Stop a Cold the First Day and Save You Much Suffering as Well as the Danger of Serious Complications!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started. Once a cold fastens itself on you, it becomes twice as hard to remove. And a cold lodged in the system may lead to something worse.

Don't hope to kill a cold with merely local or external applications. A cold is a germ attack, an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment.

Don't hope to kill a cold, either, with anything except a COLD remedy. A cure-all is self-deception. Many preparations which people commonly take for a cold actually make the relief of a cold more difficult because these preparations are constipating and also make the system acid.

The Required Effects

The thing to take for a cold or case of grippe is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine—because it does the four things necessary, in the way that is necessary.

First of all, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly—the first step in knocking a cold. Secondly, it kills the cold germs in the system, expels the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Thirdly, it relieves the headache and that grippy feeling. Fourthly, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

This is the treatment a cold calls for and anything less is taking chances.

Harmless, but Effective!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be safely taken by young and old and whether you stay indoors or go out. There is no penalty attached to its use. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L. B. Q. stamped on every tablet. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Resent a substitute as an attempt to exploit you.

NOTE: During Epidemics a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine every morning and night will do much to fortify your system against infection.

NESBIT $800,000 INSURANCE ARGUMENT BEGINS SATURDAY

FAMILY FIGHTS CREDITORS' CLAIMS

Judge James H. Gray Saturday will hear arguments of banking creditors of the late Harrison Nesbit, former president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., in efforts of the creditors to upset the $800,000 insurance trust left by Nesbit for the benefit of his widow and three children. Taking of testimony was concluded yesterday, the hearing lasting nearly three weeks.

The outcome of this case is being watched by insurance companies and others throughout the country for the reason it is held if such a trust can be set aside by creditors it would imperil the standing of such trusts generally, according to Attorney H. Fred Mercer, who represents the Nesbit family.

CLAIMS OF FAMILY

Nesbit's widow, Mrs. Edith Nesbit, and his three children, Scott H. Nesbit, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Jerome P. Bowers, of Hiland Place, Chicago, and Nancy Elizabeth Nesbit, of Warrenton, Va., who was with her father when he was fatally hurt in an automobile accident, are fighting the creditors. The widow and children claim that the proceeds of the insurance policies are exempt from claims of creditors under the insurance laws of Pennsylvania.

The creditors say that the trust in its inception was invalid by reason of the control Nesbit had reserved for himself over the trust. They also aver that by reason of Nesbit's alleged insolvency, Nesbit could not make his trustees the beneficiaries of his insurance policies. Creditors seek to recover loans from the trust fund.

The beneficiaries say that of the $800,000 now in the fund, including interest, $554,000 was always payable previous to the creation of the trust, made for the benefit of Mrs. Nesbit and her children.

DAUGHTER TESTIFIES

Miss "Betty" Nesbit, 20, who testified yesterday, produced two checks for a total of $1,133 which she personally paid on her father's insurance premiums October 5, 1931, or 16 days before his death. It was the last payment made. She testified she had earned this money showing horses.

It was shown by witnesses that Nesbit had borrowed money on the cash surrender value of his policies to pay premiums which had amounted as follows: 1928, $17,390; 1929, $17,498; 1930, $9,806; 1931, $9,543. Having borrowed on the policies to pay premiums, it is averred by the Nesbits that this could not be construed as any attempt to defraud creditors.

E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Company, was the last witness called and testified that $500 a share was a liberal price for Weirton Steel Company stock, of which Nesbit had held a block of 1,200 shares. He was formerly president of that concern, which was taken over by the National company. Scores of witnesses, including bankers, manufacturers, brokers and others were called during the nearly three weeks of the trial of the case to show values of securities held by Nesbit both in the boom days and around the time of Nesbit's death and which had greatly depreciated as collateral for loans. Nesbit held huge blocks of stocks in many concerns during a period of years prior to his death, the values of which finally faded, when the market prices of all securities began to break.

Fighting to Keep Insurance Trust

(READ STORY ON PAGE 19.)

MISS NANCY ELIZABETH NESBIT MRS. HARRISON NESBIT MRS. J. P. BOWERS

Mrs. Nesbit, widow of the former president of the closed Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., with her daughters, all in Pittsburgh for the legal battle in which 12 Pittsburgh and out-of-town creditor banks seek to break an $800,000 insurance trust. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Life of Andrew Carnegie

one expression of his general pacifism—an innate mentality that recoiled from warfare of every sort and was contented only when surrounded by peace and good feeling. Henry Clay Frick was not affected by similar reluctancies, and when it came to insisting on the "rights of property," Frick's attitude was quite in keeping with the capitalistic standpoint of the time.

Frick's Attitude

Two men more unlike than Carnegie and Frick, in this and in most other matters, could hardly be imagined. Taciturn, determined, unimaginative and undiplomatic, the relationships of working men and employers, as Frick understood them, were the simplest of problems. The younger man brought to this, the most intricate of all questions facing the new mechanic age, a logical directness and rigidity that might well have been an inheritance from his German ancestry. Labor had a definite commodity to sell, of which the steel mills had a definite need, just as they required pig iron, manganese and railroad transportation. The terms upon which this merchandise should be purchased and sold was a matter of barter between the two parties concerned. With the more far-reaching considerations that figured in Carnegie's philosophy Frick had no sympathy. He probably could not understand them; his mind never dealt in the imponderables. The inviolability of a workman's job was an idea that eluded his practical viewpoint. For labor unions he made no effort to conceal his dislike. Men like Terence V. Powderly and Samuel Gompers were pestiferous meddlers who presumed to tell proprietors how they should conduct their business.

The property sense was strong in Frick; to do what one chose with one's own was a right fairly divine. This belief was an expression of the man's determined and unyielding temper, as well as of his essential inexperience, for Frick's life had been a hard and lonely one spent in the coke fields, uninformed by reading and untouched by the thoughts of the external world. Frick had also been unfortunate in the type of workmen with whom he had previously dealt. The Hungarians, Slavs and southern Europeans of Connellsville were a savage and undisciplined horde, with whom strong-arm methods seemed at times indispensable, and when strikes broke out murder and arson became their favorite persuasions.

Becomes Chairman

In January of 1889 Frick became chairman of Carnegie Brothers & Co., whose most important property was the Edgar Thomson mill. His interest was 11 per cent. This translation from coal mines and coke ovens to the headship of America's most successful steel company was a great promotion. The ensuing three years justified Carnegie's foresight in making the change. The same initiative that had made Frick the master of Connellsville Coke now played its part in enhancing the prosperity of the Carnegie company. Only the most unthinking partisan would deny the man's ability; the one first in applauding his achievements at this time was Carnegie himself, who, in characteristic way, rained letters and cablegrams of praise on Frick's shoulders. The problem that had proved so serious since the death of Thomas M. Carnegie, that of obtaining a manager of the Carnegie enterprises, had now been solved.

On only one subject during this early period, did the two men disagree; that was the eternal question of handling labor troubles. The precedent set by Carnegie in adjusting the difficulties between himself and his Edgar Thomson employes in 1888 was one that Frick could hardly emulate. It simply was not in his nature. Differences on this score were immediately evident, Frick's action at several crises almost causing a permanent severance of relations.

The first experience of the kind, ominous for the future, came in the summer of 1887, when the employes of the Frick Coke Company laid down their tools in a dispute over wages. Frick met this situation in the uncompromising manner usually followed at the time, and had almost won the strike when a cablegram from Scotland ordered him peremptorily to meet the workers' demands.

This action precipitated the first breach. That Carnegie as majority stockholder had the legal right to issue this command, Frick recognized; however, he refused to enforce it, resigned the presidency of the company and sailed for Europe, remaining for several months without the breastworks. All Carnegie's ingratiating qualities were required to entice Achilles back into the firm, but the chairmanship of Carnegie Brothers & Co. appealed too strongly to the man's ambition to be put aside.

Another Strike

Yet the next year Carnegie repeated his coup. Another strike broke out in the coke fields; again the "Huns" went wild, resorting to murder and dynamite; and again Carnegie issued a ukase to meet the strikers' demands. The several incidents are of historic importance now as illustrating the varying moods with which Carnegie and Frick approached the harassing problems of master and men. The lesson Frick derived from these repeated submissions was that a yielding temper only postponed the inevitable struggle. That Carnegie himself felt some misgivings is not improbable; his attempts to deal more than justly were interpreted as weakness, and, from this time forth, his tolerant respect for labor unions underwent considerable modification.

When the coke men, presuming on these two surrenders, issued a new ultimatum, in February, 1890, Carnegie left the situation in Frick's hands. The resulting chapter was a fierce one; there were shootings, dynamitings, fire and murder; the Sheriff this time did his duty; the Huns and Slavs were held at bay; and Frick emerged a winner.

Be Difficult If You Want To Be in Demand

Does it pay to run after a man?

Is it good technique to 'phone him, to write him notes or—like Sweet Alice in the old song—"Weep with delight if he gives you a smile and tremble with tears at his frown"?

Here's the story of one girl who did all those things and of another girl who didn't. Then one day Meek Milly stopped acting like a worm and started to treat 'em rough. And what happened? Read it for yourself. Maybe it will be good for what ails you.

Dear Miss Robinson:

When I read about these girls who cry "I can't give him up! I'd die of a broken heart!" and then tell about how hard they've tried to make the boy friend understand how much they care for him, I have a hearty laugh all to myself. I'll tell you a story and then you'll know why.

About two years ago I went with a young man I liked well enough and he kept asking me to marry him, but I didn't care enough about him to do that. At that time a girl friend of mine came to me and told me that she loved him; so I made him promise to take her out with him now and then or he couldn't go out with me.

He did take her out, but she used to come and tell me how terribly he treated her. If she wanted to go to a show he'd insist on doing something else. If she were willing to "just go any place" he'd make her walk around the entire evening, although he hated walking as much as she did.

Once or twice I asked him to treat her better, and he politely asked me to "mind my own business"—which I guess he had a right to do.

GAVE FRIEND ADVICE

But whenever he went out with me he was attention itself. Nothing I asked was refused. Once I asked him why he wasn't that nice to her, and he said she was a pain-in-the-neck, and he wished she'd give him up. I asked him how he could be so different with me from what he was with her. He said "I know you'd give me up for the least little thing, and I'm not running my risks."

Now I ask you:

What would you call that? Knowing he couldn't have me he fought like blue blazes to keep me. And knowing he could have her any time he couldn't get rid of her quick enough. Men are funny. But since they are, shouldn't we treat 'em accordingly?

I thought so. So one evening I told her to "treat him mean;" to tell him she had a date when he called, and if she did promise to go out with him and he refused to go where she wanted to go, to tell him to go himself wherever he wanted to and leave him flat. I told her not to give in and go where he wanted to.

She had the habit of phoning him, too, and I told her to stop that pronto. She cried and said "Oh, I couldn't do it! It's breaking my heart! He might give me up if I acted like that!" and a hundred other age-old cries. But finally she decided to try it. I quit going with him entirely. He phoned me and wrote me letters, but I was "out" when he phoned, and I didn't answer the mail I got from him.

SCHEME SUCCESSFUL

Well, then he called her—and my scheme for her worked. They're going together steady now.

And I am engaged myself now, with an understanding that the engagement can be broken if—either of us change our minds—or if we can't get along. But he always says, "It keeps me on my toes to please you, because I'm afraid I'll lose you if I don't, and I couldn't go on without you."

That's the way to keep them on the job to please you. If they know you're liable to give them up if they don't watch out, they're always accommodating. I've found that out by experience. So don't be a door mat. Don't run after them. Keep them "on their toes," as my fiance says. Maybe it won't always work, but it'll work a lot oftener than being too anxious.

INDEPENDENT FIANCEE.

Good stuff, sissy! It's human to want what you can't get, particularly if you're a male. There's no adventure—nothing to make them feel big and strong and wonderful—in the girl who can be won without a struggle. So, if you want to be wanted—be a little difficult! Put a price on yourself, and the other fellow will value you accordingly. And that goes for more than love!

Mothers Are the Truly Great Women of the World, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

"To her, this date, a child was born."

That is the brief biography of all the greatest women the world will ever know.

Many men, and some women, have been acclaimed great. But the mothers that gave them life made all the rest possible.

It has been so humble, unknown mothers, in poverty and obscurity, that some of the greatest geniuses have been born. Such mothers are so unselfish. All their faith and hope is concentrated upon the future of their little ones until, like some divine power, it seems to work miracles.

"Great women" rarely have great children. Most of them have been childless.

The world could do very well without famous women, but it would end without mothers.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Limiting Adverse Trump Tricks

The problem of limiting an opponent on the left, who holds 2 apparently certain trump-tricks, to only 1 trick is a question that, in various forms, has faced practically every player of the game of Contract Bridge. Often the problem is insoluble. Sometimes it should never have arisen, as in the case below, where, had the bidding been more accurate, North and South would have had available a Grand Slam in two suits or no-trump against any Opening and a Grand Slam in a third suit, of which they had only six cards in the combined hands, against any Opening but a trump.

This unusual hand occurred in a game at Mansfield, O., and the story is told by Mr. Harold Metcalf.

South—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A Q 10 8 7 6 3 ♡ K J ◇ A J 10 ♣ 5
♠ 5 4 ♡ 8 5 3 2 ◇ 9 8 7 2 ♣ 4 3 2	North West East South	♠ K J 9 ♡ 7 6 4 ◇ 5 4 3 ♣ 9 8 7 6
	♠ 2 ♡ A Q 10 9 ◇ K Q 6 ♣ A K Q J 10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♣ (1)	Pass	6 ♠ (2)	Double (3)
Redouble (4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A bad bid. The correct bid is one club.

2—Why the hurry? North has an ideal Forcing Takeout of two spades. His spade suit is long and, at most, contains two losers. With his partner's Opening bid of two, a Small Slam appears a certainty, a Grand Slam depending only upon the finding of the best contract.

3—Equally bad. For all East knows, based on the bidding actually made, there may be Queen-small of spades in the South hand, which would make the contract a certainty.

4—South's Redouble is sound. He has a right to assume that the combined hands do not contain more than one loser. Either the trump suit is solid or his partner's hand contains the strength in other suits to limit the losers to one.

East's Opening lead was the club 6, and when the Dummy went down, the Declarer could see that the only basis of a Double by East was the possession of at least the King, Knave and one other spade, and possibly five outstanding spades. Apparently, the contract then must be defeated 1 trick, as there was no finesse possible against the marked spade strength.

North, however, saw one ray of hope. That was based on shortening his own trumps and cashing high tricks in the other suits. The chance was slight, but it was worth taking. The first trick was taken with the Ace of clubs. A club was returned at once and ruffed with the spade 3. Now North led the heart King and overtook with the Ace in Dummy. The third club was then led and ruffed with the spade 6, East's Opening lead and subsequent play apparently marking him as holding four cards of that suit. North now led the heart Knave, winning in the Dummy with the Queen and returned the third round of the suit, which was high, but which he nevertheless trumped with the spade 7. Next the Ace of diamonds was led, followed by two more rounds of diamonds, both won in the Dummy, after which the fourth round of clubs was taken. What West did here was immaterial. North trumped with the spade 8, making his tenth trick. He had shortened his own trumps from seven to three, and his opponents had won no tricks whatever. He now led the spade Queen, which East won with the King, but was forced to concede the Slam-making tricks by a lead into North's major tenace, as his hand had been stripped of every other suit.

The hand is in effect a Grand Coup, which requires the ruffing of otherwise good cards in one hand, but with the spectacular addition that the hand to be couped plays after, and not before, the long trump hand.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Please let me have the proper bidding of the following hands:

South—Dealer.

♠ Q J 5 3
♡ Q 10 6 2
◇ 10 5
♣ A J 8

North / South

♠ A K 6 4
◇ A K Q 2
♣ K 10 7 5 2

Answer—The bidding:

South	North
1 ♣	1 NT
3 ♠	5 ♠ (1)
6 ♠	Pass

1—A Slam invitation, justified by South's Forcing Rebid and the strong fit in the two suits bid by South.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

When Walking

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When two young men and a girl are walking, isn't it correct for the young men to walk on the outside, and the girl next?

2—When ordering a lunch, doesn't the girl tell the young man she is with her order and he in turn tell the waiter, giving his and her order? S. E.

1—When two men and a girl are walking together, the girl walks between them.

2—Yes. The girl gives her order to her host, and he, in turn, relays both orders to the waiter or waitress.

The Soup Plate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle an argument, which is correct—to tilt one's soup plate toward one or away from one? T.

It's considered best manners not to tilt your soup plate at all, but, if you wish to do it, tilt the plate away from you, with the soup spoon, too, turned away from you.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Enlarged Glands Often Traced to Infection

This is the time of the year when swollen or enlarged glands of the neck are rather common complaints. Enlarged glands, or "adenitis," which is the medical name for this condition, frequently occurs after a cold or fever. It is a common childhood complaint, but afflicts the adult as well.

Dr. Copeland

Enlarged glands, when found in the neck, are often traced to an infection in the teeth, tonsils or ear. It may be associated with infections of the scalp or skin. An enlarged gland is a warning signal. It means an infection in some part of the body.

If the glands of the neck are swollen, it is probable the infection will be found in the head, face or neck. When the glands of the groin are swollen, the infection is in the lower extremities. If all the glands of the body are enlarged, it is a sign of generalized or systemic infection. In such extreme cases, the body is afflicted by poisons carried in the blood stream.

"Cervical adenitis," or swelling of the glands of the neck, is a condition that must never be neglected. In children, the infection that causes this enlargment is usually traced to enlarged and diseases tonsils. Not all cases of tonsilitis result in adenitis. But enlargment of the glands is likely to recur unless the diseases tonsils are removed.

Adenitis may be traced to other infections, such as diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and influenza. The swelling may be so severe as to be mistaken for mumps. Tuberculosis should be suspected when the glands on both sides of the neck are involved, or if the swelling persists after the fever and pain disappear.

In all cases of adenitis the mouth should be kept clean with mouth washes, such as Dobell's solution or simple salt water. Drink copious amounts of water.

When the gland is acutely inflamed, the pain may be relieved by the application of an icebag or hot water bag. If the swelling persists and pus is present, the gland should be opened and the pus removed.

Contrary to the common belief, little relief is obtained by the application of ointments, salves and other medications. Never do any self-prescribing. Talk with your doctor about your trouble.

Of course the underlying cause of the adenitis must be determined and removed if possible. For example, if the swelling is due to eczema of the scalp, every effort should be made to relieve this affliction. If the teeth or tonsils are diseased, the proper measures of cure should be undertaken.

Adenitis should never be neglected. Many persons overlook the health of the mouth, failing to keep the mouth and the teeth scrupulously clean. This neglect leads to infected teeth, tonsils or sinuses and subsequent adenitis.

Council of War Ponders Over Next Move

"Here is the situation," Hugh said abruptly, when the door had closed behind Mrs. Merton. "No," as my father made an involuntary gesture for caution, "she is all right. Circumstances, which you will know in a minute, compelled us to take her into our confidence.

"But we have a worse problem on our hands than I had dreamed possible. We have discovered that some of the Chinese marauders who menaced the farmhouse are apparently the kidnapers of the girls. They have demanded Marion's lockbox as the ransom, and—Lee Chow, I fear, has fallen into their hands. He has disappeared—gone since last night, with no word to me."

"The Chinese!" Harry Underwood repeated, in a strong, militant voice. "I can't believe it! Why! don't you remember, man—that night at the farmhouse—?"

Harry, Hugh, Dicky and my father, all relying upon Lee Chow, had rested easily after that night, believing that the Chinese menace was definitely over; but now—

"We'll go back to the beginning of this development," Hugh said quickly. "Margaret, will you tell them of the telephone call, please?"

MESSAGE EXAMINED

I must not seem conscious of anything unusual, I told myself severely, and managed to throw myself into the recital of the telephone message that had brought me to the mountain glen tea room, and of the description the Mertons had given of the people who had ordered and paid for a meal and gone off without eating it.

"They're the people responsible for the message, of course," my father said. "Later, I'd like to hear the Mertons' description at first hand, but just now—Darling, where is this message?"

"Here!" I put into his hands the sheets of rice paper which I was still clutching, and Hugh handed him the reading glass which I had seen the thoughtful Mrs. Merton lay upon the table before she went downstairs. Harry Underwood ranged himself at my father's right, looking over his shoulder, and both men motioned to Ronald to occupy a similar position on the other side.

They read the ghastly thing in silence, but at the end the boy's composure, not disciplined like that of the men, broke into horrified exclamation.

"Oh! How fiendish!" he said brokenly. "Surely you're not going to wait any longer! Can't you send them that devilish box right away?"

Harry Underwood put his hand upon the boy's shoulder.

FEARS MURDER

"Do you think we're hesitating about the box, lad, or about any money that we can possibly raise?" he asked. "It's only that—Hugh, you tell him what I know is in your mind!"

Hugh gave a pitying look at the boy's strained face, then spoke quickly.

"As long as these men, whoever they are, see a chance of getting what they demand, they may not add murder to their other crime," he said, "and of course there is the chance that, if they receive the box, they will keep their word and release the girls. But if the Chinese—the ones involved in the farmhouse—are back of this, they—have—reason—to be—particularly vindictive. I am afraid the receipt of the box would be the signal for the death of the girls."

"I sent for you just now, not alone for consultation upon this development, but because you and Ronald must give the word for us to make the attack tonight upon the hiding place of the kidnapers. I know it was all decided, but, in view of this Chinese angle and the disappearance of Lee Chow, I dare not take the responsibility of going on without the renewed sanction of you men more nearly concerned than I. You agree with me, I am sure, Chief."

KLEENEX Soft, absorbent—now costs but 25c

MUCH of the misery of a cold comes from irritation caused by damp handkerchiefs.

This discomfort is avoided when you use Kleenex—a soft, cloth-like tissue, many times more absorbent than cotton or linen.

Since the cost is very low, a tissue need be used but once. Thus, you have a clean tissue every time—soft, soothing and dry.

Much more healthful

Kleenex is not only more comfortable, it is infinitely more sanitary. A cold-filled handkerchief re-infects the user, spreads infection to others. Kleenex fibers are so powerfully absorbent that they hold germs securely, harmless, until the Kleenex can be destroyed.

No disagreeable laundering

When you use Kleenex there's no disagreeable handkerchief washing, no laundry expense. And the hygienic Kleenex habit actually costs less than having handkerchiefs laundered! Kleenex is sold at all drug and department stores.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

O'Brien Offers Reforms. Sees Boxing Made Safer. Giant Camp Loses Color. Corbett Worthy Champ. Staggering Auto Speed. World's Fastest Miles.

TOO MUCH GLOVE WEIGHT IN WRISTS

WHEN THE LAW-MAKERS sought to make boxing safer by stipulating that the gloves must be not less than five ounces in weight, the idea being to have the padding reduce the force of the blows, they overlooked a bet in failing to provide how the weight should be distributed. It's an easy matter to put a goodly part of it up around the wrists, and thus cut down the padding over the knuckles. The glove weighs five ounces, and that's all that is required. It's staying within the letter of the law, though not carrying out the spirit of it.

Jack O'Brien

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, once a master boxer in the middle, light-heavy and heavyweight classes, charges that failure to distribute the weight the way the law-makers intended has defeated the purpose of the safety measure, and he suggests a change in the construction of gloves as one of the reforms necessary to put the game on a better and safer footing. He thinks that even the collapse of Ernie Schaaf may have been due, in part, to the distribution of the weight of the gloves.

"I DO NOT believe it is realized that during the last five or six years boxing gloves have been made with several ounces of padding in the wrists alone," O'Brien says. "I do not hesitate to say that the spirit of the rule providing for five-ounce gloves has been ignored.

"When these gloves are worn by a man with hands as big as Carnera's, tightly laced and with so much of the weight placed in the wrists, they have the effect of a skin-tight glove drawn across the knuckles. It has been 40 years since men were permitted to fight with skin-tight gloves, which produced harder punching and more dangerous punishment.

"I HAVE THREE new rules to suggest. Firstly, the gloves should not only be padded differently, with a padding at the wrist decreased and that over the knuckles greatly increased, but the weight should be increased from the featherweight to the dreadnaught class.

"Secondly, each round in the heavyweight and dreadnaught classes should be not more than two minutes, with a minute of rest, which would speed up action and reduce the number of terrific body and head blows, and thirdly, there should be three physicians to pass on the condition of the contestants—one when the match is made, another during the training period, and the last on fight day."

THE GIANT TRAINING trip this year lacks much of the color that used to make it one of baseball's biggest spring acts. The battery men arrive in Los Angeles today to start practice tomorrow, and John McGraw is not with them. Nor will he join them later. It will be the first time in 30 years that he has not been on hand for at least part of the conditioning period. Without McGraw, it isn't the same old picture, and its loss of public appeal was evident even in the home town of the Giants when the small advance guard departed for the West coast. Only a handful of mildly curious spectators saw the start. There was none of the thrill of other years, when McGraw's color, showmanship and stage direction put the scent of baseball in the air and had the fans wrought up weeks before the season opened.

John McGraw

AND A GOODLY part of McGraw's old troupe has gone out with him. Giant visitors will miss Freddie Lindstrom, too, as well as Dave Bancroft, Frank Hogan, Bob O'Farrell, Clarence Mitchell, Bill Walker and some lesser lights.

With so much color gone, officials of the New York club possibly may find that their order barring spectators from the early practice sessions was unnecessary. The former drawing power isn't there. Eventually it may be realized that McGraw meant something at the gate as well as on the field.

THERE IS NO doubt that Young Corbett III, the new welterweight champion, is a real fighter, and ring fans in general were glad to see the title pass to him if Jackie Fields had to lose it.

For Corbett had done enough to qualify as a champion by defeating both Fields and Young Jack Thompson in 1930, besides stopping Farmer Joe Cooper and Bucky Lawless in one round each and beating Paul Pirrone, Paulie Walker and others.

BUT CHAMPIONSHIPS ARE not always allowed to fall into the most deserving hands when a manager of the Jack Kearns type is piloting the titleholder. Fans are wondering if Kearns became owner of an interest in Corbett before giving him a chance when Fields was ready to be knocked off, inasmuch as a title match with Jimmy McLarnin in New York would have meant a larger gate. The welter title has changed hands more frequently than any other, largely through inside stable arrangements. That's the seventh time in less than four years. Since 1929 it has shifted from Joe Dundee to Fields, then to Young Jack Thompson, next to Tommy Freeman, then back to Thompson, next to Lew Brouillard, then to Fields again and now to Corbett.

IT IS RATHER fitting that a new champion with the adopted name of Corbett should rise only four days after the death of Gentleman Jim. The conqueror of Fields is the third fighter to call himself Young Corbett. The first was George Green, a welterweight, who retired in 1899, and the second was William H. Rothwell, who took the featherweight championship from Terry McGovern in 1901, a victory almost as surprising as that of Jim Corbett over John L. Sullivan.

The proper name of Young Corbett III is Ralph Capabianca Giordano. He was born in Fresno, Cal., of Italian parentage, is 24, and has been a pro since 1929. In his boyhood he resided for some time in Pittsburgh. Corbett is the third Italian now holding a world ring championship, the others being Midget Wolgast, flyweight, and Tony Canzoneri, lightweight.

AS IF AN automobile speed of 272.108 miles an hour or a mile in 13.23 seconds, were not staggering enough in itself, the amazing Sir Malcolm Campbell further astounds you by declaring he was not at all satisfied with this fastest land mile in history.

Sir Malcolm Campbell

He calls it the worst ride he ever had, complains of handicaps that held him back, and intimates generally that he still hopes one day to make 300 miles an hour. And in view of what he has accomplished, who can doubt his eventual success? On the same Daytona Beach course 30 years ago daring drivers were making less than 100 miles an hour and believed it fast.

THE FASTEST MILES ever traveled make an interesting study right now. Here they are, in the order of their speed: Airplane, 8 4-5 seconds, Lieut. O. H. INELIGIBILITY REMOVES 16 ATHLETES

By JESS CARVER

Athletic scholarships at the University of Pittsburgh have not been discontinued for the simple and sufficient reason that for the past three years such scholarships have not been in existence.

What have been discontinued at Pitt, however—temporarily so at least, are some 16 varsity and freshmen athletes who have failed to keep up in their classroom work. Included among these are two members of Dr. Red Carlson's varsity basketball team, Claire Cribbs, star center, and Francis (Slim) Wainio, reserve forward. These lads will not accompany the Panthers on the eastern trip which gets under way tonight.

16 ATHLETES DROPPED

The others to be dropped from school by the action yesterday of the committee on eligibility included another former member of the varsity court squad; three freshmen passers; one member of the varsity football team who already has left school, Mike Nicksick; one varsity swimmer; three members of the track squad and five freshmen footballers.

The scholarship situation, which has been gone into by this correspondent in former articles, follows:

Some five years ago, the Middle Atlantic States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, of which almost all the big institutions of the East are members, and which confines its activities in the main to the setting of academic credits, took a definite stand against the out and out and also the indirect subsidization of athletes. It called upon its members to obey both the letter and spirit of the law.

Pitt was among the first of the larger schools, not excluding Penn State, to conform to the ruling of the Association and did so in three steps: These follow:

TOOK THREE STEPS

1—Recommendation that outside and Senatorial scholarships be turned over to the student aid committee of the university to be given out impartially.

2—Organized a system of deferred tuition, by which all students, regardless of whether they were athletes or not, could sign notes to take care of school expenses.

3—Indorsement last week by the board of trustees of the university of the Middle States Association's edict against all athletic scholarships and the resultant calling upon of the athletic council to obey both the letter and spirit of the law.

The only thing new about the entire affair is that a tighter curb has been placed on the matter of subsidization by the ignoring of all athletic prowess on the part of a student applying for a scholarship.

Since taking over the reins as athletic director at Pitt, W. Don Harrison has been working within university circles toward the end which will be accomplished by the indorsement of the Middle States Association ruling.

COURT TEAM CRIPPLED

With Cribbs and Wainio lost through ineligibility, and Whitey Wilson suspended for the remainder of the season because of punch he, or some other player, took at Umpire Leo Mackey after the Duquesne game last week (there remains considerable doubt in some quarters as to just whether or not Wilson was the offender), Coach Carlson faces a tough week-end in the East. The Panthers are to meet Georgetown tomorrow and the Navy on Saturday. Both these opponents downed the Panthers last year.

Tomorrow night, Coach Joe Orsini, of the boxing team, will lead his squad of punchers out of town and point 'em toward Annapolis, where they'll box the Navy Saturday afternoon.

HARPSTER UNDER KNIFE

Howard Harpster, Carnegie's young football coach, is to undergo an operation for an ear condition in the Allegheny General Hospital today. The Tartan coach entered the institution last night. Harp has been suffering with ear trouble for the past several years. The operation will be performed by Dr. George McKee.

Permanent Grid Leaders Passe At Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 23—(AP.)—There will be no more football captains elected at Notre Dame.

This was decided by the athletic board of control, which ruled that hereafter the football coach shall select a captain for each game.

Instead of a permanent captaincy, the board voted a most valuable player award, the Paul D. Gulbert cup, which will be given to the player voted as outstanding each season. The first ballot for this award will be taken tonight for the 1932 star.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A PRECOCIOUS RECITATION—Alexander Hamilton was born in the island of Nevis, in the West Indies. At the age of 4, he was sent to a small school which happened to be kept by a lady of the Jewish persuasion. One day, young Alexander climbed up on a table, and, with his hands behind, demanded instant attention. To the great indignation of his father, who was alarmed at the child's precocity, he proceeded to recite the Decalogue in the original Hebrew, taught him by the Jewish lady.

TOMORROW: THE FORGOTTEN WOMAN.

GIBSON GIVES BATTERYMEN WORKOUT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal.—The Pirate pitchers and catchers staged their initial drill of the spring training season this morning. Despite a clouded sky that chased the intermittent smiles of a comforting sun, the workout was a success.

Manager Gibson and his three aides, Honus Wagner, Otis Crandall and Grover Hartley, led 11 pitchers, three catchers and several Los Angeles semi-pros onto the big ball park at 10 o'clock. Although the two hours just gave the players plenty of time for limbering up, the spectacle for the most part, smacked of Hollywood. Four movietone specialists from this flicker town stormed Gibby and his athletes as they entered the baseball portals. The talkie tribe scattered their equipment about the ball orchard and went to work for more than an hour, Gibson giving them all the time they needed.

The opening drill consisted mostly of throwing, running and chasing fungoes. In the event that the day remains dry another session will be held this afternoon.

FRENCH, KREMER ARRIVE

Larry French and Remy Kremer arrived late in the day and several semi-pro performers added to the general gayety of the occasion.

Gibson held a meeting last night after the uniforms were passed out. He instructed everybody to go slowly in the matter of limbering up. This same advice, however, has been given for ages and in many cases it is disregarded. It is the conventional thing to do, this matter of issuing warnings, but it is quite another thing to hold a boy when he gets his hands on a ball, a bat and a glove. So there will be plenty of sore arms tonight.

Those who dressed this morning in anticipation of a workout included Ralph Birkofer, Leon Chagnon, Larry French, Bill Harris, Waite Hoyt, Remy Kremer, Heinie Meine, Hal Smith, Steve Swetonic, Bill Swift and Charley Wood, all pitchers, and Hal Finney, Earl Grace and Tommy Padden, catchers.

WAGNER ENTERTAINS

But the natives had their most enjoyment in looking at Honus Wagner. Wagner was the center of attraction last night. The home folks were all het up over the former star of the diamond.

Wagner and the other coaches assisted Gibson in handling the batterymen. The 11 strapping pitchers made a fine impression as they prepared for the initial drill. The boys who need poundage, like Wood and Swetonic, had an over supply, and Catcher Earl Grace is much stronger than he was a year ago.

Boss Gibson plans a second workout at 2 o'clock, local time.

President W. E. Benswanger, of the Pirates, celebrated his forty-first birthday yesterday. Honus Wagner reaches his fifty-ninth milestone tomorrow.

LOCAL SOCCER CARD FULL

By TOM BIRKS

Now that the National Cup games are out of the way for at least two weeks, local soccer fans will turn their attention to the West Penn Cup games scheduled for Sunday.

The best game of the day finds the Union Switch and Signal aggregation battling it out with the Castle Shannon Zoneys at South Park.

The West Penn open and junior competitions this season are being run on a home-and-home basis. The first game at Swissvale between the aforementioned clubs ended in a tie.

The schedule also finds Heidelberg clashing with Barsotti at McKinley Park. Sygan goes to Moon Run and Sturgeon is to meet the McKnights at Shannon.

It is the intention of local soccer men to bring to Pittsburgh some classy games before the season closes. The next big game at Greenlee Field will be the Moon Run-McKnights clash in the semi-final round of the national amateur cup competition. This is scheduled for March 5.

Secretary John McEwan, of Cleveland, made tentative arrangements to play the western final of the National Amateur Cup at Greenlee Field, which means the Cleveland Slavias will be back here.

The two big national open games at Greenlee Field, featuring Curry, backs up the stand of local soccer men that Pittsburgh is one of the best soccer towns in the country.

The Valley Athletis and Garfield United meet Sunday at Athletics Field at 3 o'clock.

Legion Quintet Meets Girls' Five

The Struthers girls basketball team, one of the strongest in Ohio, will oppose a men's team representing American Legion Post No. 548, in a benefit game at the George Washington School gym Richland Township, at 8:30 tomorrow night.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Honus Wagner will celebrate his fifty-ninth birthday in the Paso Robles (Cal.) training camp of the Pirates tomorrow . . . Just a rookie, that's what he is, just a rookie . . . Needing a little seasoning before he can hope to make the grade up there in the big leagues.

They say of Jim Corbett that he was the only sponsored air personality who never used a script, he was so proud of his ability to ad lib in interesting fashion . . . He was quite an ad libber even back in his fighting days, according to Sunny Jim Coffroth, the former California promoter, who called him a Marquis of Queesbery Lawyer . . . Jim always insisted on being prepared for any emergency . . . He liked to know in advance the name of the referee, so he could go to him and satisfy himself that the arbiter knew the rules . . . Jim himself knew the rule book inside and out, and he'd give the referee the third degree.

Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, the former light-heavyweight champion, is 30 years old now and in his fourteenth year in the ring . . . When he was 19 years old, he fought Harry Greb, Mike McTigue and Gene Tunney . . . All those fellows did was to win the middleweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight titles among them . . . In the 21 months he held the light-heavyweight title before resigning it, Loughran defended it seven times, or an average of once every three months, and three times within three months in New York's Madison Square Garden . . . He fought the late Ernie Schaaf four times, beating him twice, and met Pittsburgh's Harry Greb five times . . . All told, he's had close to 150 professional battles and still is holding his own against the leading heavyweights.

Fans who saw the third meeting between Ted Yarosz and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe at Motor Square Garden recently, when Yarosz suffered the first official defeat of his career, remember how keenly affected Ted was over that setback . . . He kicked up a fuss and seemed inconsolable . . . He still thinks he won that fight, and so do the critics and many of the fans, all of which leads up to the story of how Yarosz got over feeling badly about what had happened.

Ted decided to take a trip to strange places until he forgot the sting of the defeat . . . Unaccompanied, he bought a ticket for Chicago and from there went to several other cities, including St. Louis, and then came back home, his blues gone and his mental attitude adjusted for a new try at a winning streak . . . Now that it is all over, he's satisfied it was a good thing for him to lose a fight, for the strain of striving to remain unbeaten was a tough grind.

As for Wolfe, he went to Hot Springs, Ark., to rest up and he engaged in a tuneup fight with a Dwight Fryer there last week, winning by a knockout in three rounds . . . Both Yarosz and Wolfe had an eye cut when their heads butted in an early round, but the injuries have healed and the rivals vow they'll be ready when the bell hits . . . They've fought one draw and each has garnered one victory in their three meetings.—HARRY KECK.

Star Miler Plans Crack at Record

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(AP.)—Glenn Cunningham, Kansas University runner, who twice this season has conquered Gene Venzke, holder of the world indoor mile record of 4:10, has asked permission of Amateur Athletic Union officials to attempt to break Venzke's record in the national indoor championships at Madison Square Garden Saturday.

POLICE-BOXER RITES TODAY

A former uncrowned champion of the prize ring, one who ruled the lightweights of England when the game was in its bare knuckle days, was laid to rest in Homewood Cemetery this afternoon with the burial of Thomas Sterck, 83, former city detective and a member of the police force.

Sterck died at his home, 3363 Beechwood boulevard, Monday afternoon. In the early 80's Sterck's renown as a bare-knuckle fighter in England was so great that few of the top-notchers would meet him. He came to America and settled in Philadelphia.

Roger O'Mara, then superintendent of the Pittsburgh police department, brought Sterck here to teach the local defenders of the law, who had been coming out second best in battles with steel mill workers all too regularly, the manly art. A gym was set up in the old Oak Alley Station and history has it that bashed noses and black eyes became fewer and fewer on the visages of Pittsburgh's finest.

Sterck later was promoted to cell sergeant, then was transferred to police headquarters and later advanced to the position of detective sergeant. He found time from his duties as a police officer to box with all the celebrities of the ring who visited Pittsburgh, and met such men as John L. Sullivan, Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe, James J. Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Jefferies.

Princeton Passers Upset Yale, 46-26

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Princeton retained its chance to win the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League championship last night by overwhelming Yale, league leader, 46 to 26, in their second meeting of the season. Yale still has a chance to gain a tie for the title, even if Princeton wins all its remaining games.

ILLINOIS QUITS RING BODY

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Reports in connection with Jack Dempsey's long-standing argument with the Mississippi boxing officials have resulted in disclosing that Illinois has withdrawn from the National Boxing Association.

The resignation was mailed to James (Bingo) Brown, of Ypsilanti, Mich., president of the N. B. A., by retiring members of the Illinois State Athletic Commission last December 13 with the explanation that they desired to give the newly appointed commission an open road in the matter of affiliation.

Hot Spur Repeats Hunt Club Victory

CAMDEN, S. C., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Over a difficult two-mile timber course, Hot Spur, a chestnut gelding owned by Mrs. W. Austin Wadsworth, Genesee, N. Y., yesterday won for the second time the Washington Birthday plate of the Camden Hunt races before a society crowd of 3,500.

Ridden by Ray Woolfe, of Westfield, N. J., who piloted him to victory last year, Hot Spur took the lead from Sunset, owned by Harry D. Kirkover, Camden, in the last quarter mile, and won by two lengths in 4:33 flat, approximately half a minute faster than the 1932 mark.

BULLMAN MADE COACH

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—The appointment of Gale Bullman, football line coach at Washington University here, as track coach, has been announced by university officials following a "strike" by 45 members of the track team when they learned Robert Doyle, track coach, had been released.

YOUNG CORBETT III REIGNS AS WELTERWEIGHT CHAMPION

JACKIE FIELDS BADLY BEATEN, LOSES TITLE

By RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23.—Stocky dark-haired Young Corbett III, of Fresno, Cal., trod a hard path to the welterweight championship, but, when the big opportunity came, he was master of all he surveyed.

The Fresno southpaw rested here today with the crown securely on his brow while Jackie Fields, the slender Los Angeles boxer, mourned the beating he took in a 10-round bout yesterday which marked the passing of the title.

Corbett whipped Fields in convincing fashion, repeating the decision he took over the Southern Californian three years ago, only more so.

It was the end of a long trail for Corbett, a two-fisted 27-year-old fighter, born in Italy, but reared in the sunny San Joaquin Valley of Central California.

MAY MEET AGAIN

Corbett, fighting for eight years, has beaten another champion besides Fields. He took the measure of Young Jack Thompson, Oakland Negro, in a non-title bout here in San Francisco, but he had a long wait for the crown.

There was much talk here today of a return match between Corbett and Fields, or a bout between the new champion and Jimmy McLarnin, the Belfast Spider, but there was nothing definite as yet.

Corbett left no doubt as to his mastery of Fields, although there was a lot of suspicion among ringsiders that Fields could not see as well as he might. He didn't seem to be able to get out of the way of the crushing lefts which the challenger leveled at him, and he limited his efforts to getting in close to Corbett and pounding the Fresno fighter about the body.

EYES SEEM IMPAIRED

Fields dropped seven of the 10 rounds by wide margins. His jaw was a target for the heavy blows of Corbett, but he never backed up, always came forward, and he was a champion game in defeat. He backed Corbett around the ring, but took a bad beating. He didn't seem to be able to see the blows coming at him, although he claimed before the fight that his eyes were absolutely all right.

Time after time, the challenger cracked Fields squarely on the jaw or the body, rocking him like a storm-beaten tree, but Fields stayed on his feet.

The husky Fresno boxer had too much strength at all times. He whirled the champion around in the clinches and held him off with one hand and beat him with the other.

DEFENDER OUTCLASSED

Fields' knees sagged round after round from the beating he took, but he was boring in even at the finish, always trying.

The champion was clearly outclassed, but not outgamed. The new champion's real name is Raffaele Giordano. He has been boxing 10 years, during which time he has had 141 bouts. He has lost only two decisions and never has been knocked out.

The fight yesterday, staged as a Washington's Birthday feature at the baseball park here, drew a gross gate of $56,000, with a net $49,600, of which Fields received a guarantee of $35,000 and his opponent a mere $4,000, along with the opportunity to win the title.

STEVENS SETS SLED MARK

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Saving the greatest speed and danger for the last, the dare devil drivers of the treacherous Mt. Von Hoevenberg Olympic bob run closed their racing season yesterday, crowning J. Hubert Stevens North American champion of the four-men crews and greatest of the season's pilots.

Stevens, one of the four bobsledding brothers and a giant of a man, not only drove to his fourth major title, but set an astounding record of one minute, 44.57 seconds for the 1½ mile run as well.

Completing the last two heats of the championship that started Feb. 19, Stevens rocketed his sled down the twisting chute first in 1:46.16, a new record, and then in 1:50.76 as he eased up on the last run, with no chance of his total of 7 minutes, 12.51 seconds, a new record for the four heats, being beaten.

When the championships had been decided, Stevens took his crew back up the mountainside and cut loose with the fastest run in the history of bob sledding. With the glare ice of the straightways and monstrous curves hard as polished steel, Stevens whipped his sled down the course in 1:44.57, dwarfing the record of 1:52 that stood up to the time the speed kings started their assaults this winter.

Wykoff Captures Two Sprint Races

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Frank Wykoff, former Southern California flier, captured two firsts and a fourth in a special sprint series during the New Jersey indoor championships for women last night.

The world 100-yard record holder was beaten badly in the 40-yard dash, trailing Al Maskery, of Penn; Bill Carnochan, of Trenton State Teachers, and Bill Hession, Newark A. C. He came back a few minutes later, however, to win both the 50 and 60-yard sections of the series, tieing Maskery, who was second both times, in points. The times were 4 4-5, 5 4-5 and 6 2-5 seconds.

SCHOOL QUINTS ON EDGE FOR OPENER

By JULIUS LEVIN

Two repeaters in the W. P. I. A. L. sectional basketball races will have the honor of ushering in the 1933 eliminations in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion tomorrow night, when New Kensington, champion of Section I, and East Pittsburgh, champion of Section XVII, clash in one of the two first-round engagements arranged by the basketball committee.

The other first-round game, the date of which is still in doubt, will bring together Robinson Township, Section XII champion, and the champion of Section XIV, which will be either Burgettstown or McDonald. All other sectional champions drew byes and will appear in the second round.

COLEMAN TEAM STRONG

Strange as it may seem, East Pittsburgh High, for the second time in two years, has been forced to appear in the opening first-round battle. Last year Johnny Coleman's Section XVII champions were pitted against Swissvale, which was representing Section XI, and finished on the short end of a 16-9 score.

Fans attending tomorrow's opener will find East Pittsburgh a vastly improved quintet. The addition of Ed Kweller, giant center, has filled a big gap in the Shamrocks' lineup and they should give New Kensington a real battle.

Carl Glock's New Kensington team will be no stranger to W. P. I. A. L. supporters for the valley quintet has been a perennial champion in the elimination competition.

New Kensington advanced to the final round last year, losing to Braddock in the championship game by eight points. The score was 29 to 21. Before bowing to the W. P. I. A. L. champions, New Kensington defeated Sewickley Township in a second round fray 32-29; beat East Pike Run in a quarter final match, 33-18, and eliminated Charleroi in the semi finals, 32-28.

LIPPE LODGES PROTEST

Two members of the crack Ambridge team, Eddie Gutowski and John Michelosen, have had the eligibility questioned and a protest lodged against Ambridge claiming the Section IV title. The protests were filed by Nate Lippe, athletic director at Aliquippa.

Gutowski and Michelosen are charged with having participated in outside games in which pro players took part, which is against W. P. I. A. L. rules. Gutowski played in a tournament last March in East Liverpool, and Michelosen with the Irwin club of Pittsburgh.

Coach Moe Rubinstein said both players had been permitted to take part in the games after he had been assured that the tournaments were sanctioned by the A. A. U.

The decisions committee of the W. P. I. A. L. will take up the cases tonight at a meeting at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

LOCAL WOMAN MEETS DEFEAT

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.—Mrs. L. G. Riley, of the Edgewood Country Club, of Pittsburgh, is participating in the title consolation second round of the annual South Atlantic golf championship over the Ormond Beach Golf Club course today. She is opposing Mrs. Bee Brindle, of England.

Mrs. Riley was eliminated in the tournament proper in an international contest by Miss Kathleen Garnham, of England, 5 and 4, yesterday. The English girl was erratic on the outward nine. She went out in 44 to Mrs. Riley's 45, but they were all even at this stage as each won two holes. Miss Garnham taking the fourth and seventh and Mrs. Riley annexing the first and eighth.

BRITON RALLIES

Returning, however, Miss Garnham ran into a streak of brilliant golf and won five holes in succession, finishing the match on the fourteenth. Her three on the fifteenth gave her a mark of two under even fours for the six-hole stretch.

The English girl whacked her second to within a few feet of the green on the 406-yard eleventh and on the twelfth she holed out an eight-foot putt for a birdie 3 against men's par 4. Mrs. Riley's short game was not up to her usual standard.

Miss Frances Williams, of Allentown, Pa., the medalist and defending champion, won a closely contested match from Mrs. H. C. Kersten, of Richmond, the Virginia titleholder, 2 and 1. Miss Diana Fishwick, 1930 British champion and at present English and French queen, scored an easy victory over Mrs. Marion Hochheimer, of New York, 6 and 5.

SCOTT ADVANCES

In the first division, Albert R. Hakes, of Dunkirk, N. Y., is opposing Jack Butler, of West Palm Beach.

Scott participated in the longest match of the tournament yesterday when he was forced to traverse 22 holes in order to dispose of Elmer Rich, of Chicago. It was a hard-fought contest, in which the lead alternated continually. The Pittsburgh golfer squared the match on the seventeenth hole and terminated proceedings on the fourth extra hole, where he sank a 15-foot putt.

Butler scored a sensational victory over Tommy Goodwin, 19-year-old New York state titleholder, 3 and 1. Hakes defeated William B. Langford, of Chicago, 5 and 4.

In the shoot-off for runner-up honors, Bachman won with nine out of 10 fliers.

No. 1—Earl Grace, First-String Catcher.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 23.

Where were you born, Earl—and in what year?

At Barton, Ky., a town of 250 inhabitants near the Cumberland River, in 1907.

Terrible.

Were you brought up there?

No, my dad asked for waivers on Barton when I was a tad and we moved to Phoenix, Ariz.

Earl Grace

How did you get into baseball?

I liked the game so well I would play hook to get into it, so they put me on the high school team as catcher to keep me in school.

How did you break into the professional game?

Lincoln, Neb., of the Western League, gave me a trial when I was a punk kid, but I was dropped for lack of experience. Late the same year I had a try-out with the Little Rock team, of the Southern Association. That club sent me to Muskogee, Okla., of the Western Association.

Did you make out well at Muskogee?

Not so well. The team had a good first-string receiver and I caught only 15 games. But I played 19 in the outfield and hit .298. That was in 1926.

Where were you in 1927?

I was a little disgusted and stayed out of professional ball, but I played a lot of semi-pro games around Arizona and batted .320. Little Rock wanted me back, so I went with the Arkansas Travelers in 1928. I caught 90 games and batted .336.

What happened?

Plenty—I got a big thrill that fall when I learned I was a member of the Chicago Cubs. The thrill wasn't so hot the next spring, when I realized I had to get past Gabby Hartnett and Mike Gonzales before I could do my stuff.

That was a tough spot—did you go on strike?

No the Cubs shipped me to their Reading farm in 1929-30. I was in 137 games for Reading in 1930—53 in the outfield—and batted .324. I was recalled and traded to the Pirates for Catcher Rolly Hemsley, in 1931.

How does it feel to be the first-string catcher for a big league club?

I would rather be that than be President.

Have you any hobbies?

I like music—especially "The Arkansas Traveler."

BRITON RESTS ON LAURELS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, British race driver who yesterday hung up three new world land speed records, announced definitely today he would make no more speed trials here this year. He will leave Tuesday for New York to sail for England March 3.

Campbell said he would ship his record-holding Bluebird racing car north tomorrow or Saturday.

Decision not to make any more speed trials this year was reached after the 48-year-old driver had consulted a physician, who told him it would not be advisable to race now because of a previously sprained arm.

Campbell injured his left arm a week ago when, while making a test run in his car, the gear lever slipped out of place and struck him just above the wrist, bruising a tendon. During his record-smashing achievement on the beach yesterday the Britisher was forced to drive most of the way over a bumpy beach with only one hand. His left arm was encased in bandages and a leather guard.

Campbell had wanted to try for new land speed records today for one kilometer and one mile from a standing start.

In making his thunderous runs over the hard-packed sands yesterday, Campbell gathered in new records of 272.463 miles an hour over one kilometer; 272.108 over a mile and 257.295 over five kilometers to bring to five the number of world land speed records he possesses.

Campbell's previous records for the first three distances were 251.340 for one kilometer; 253.968 for one mile and 247.941 for five kilometers.

Between Rounds

Pete Guiotta, of New York, will box Louie Severo, of Meadville, in the eight-round semi-final to the Ted Yarosz-Eddie (Kid) Wolfe fight at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, and General Burr, of Aliquippa, are in the second bout.

Johnny Windsor, Herron Hill heavyweight, is back in training and may box Sunny Jim McVey in one of the bouts at the Garden one week from Monday. Drew Snavely is his manager.

Luke Carney is challenging Battling Gizzy on behalf of his Eddie Zivic. He wants Eddie to be the first local opponent to knock out Gizzy, and he believes he can do it.

Chino Alvares, the Cuban lightweight champion, who recently stopped Gizzy in Georgia, now is in New York under the management of Bill Duffy. He claims to have scored 121 knockouts in 165 fights.

The out-of-town fighters on the Arena's card tomorrow night are due to arrive in town today and taper off their training here. The bill is one of the best of the season here, consisting of three 10-round-ers and six-rounder, with Paulie Walker, Jack Pallas, Morrie Sherman and Joe Rugguzoni meeting local talent in Tiger Joe Randall, Frank Novak, Billy Holt and Anson Green, respectively.

Joe Marcus, Braddock lightweight, who scored a technical knockout over Maxie Strub at the Garden last Monday night, has been matched with Frankie Bolzaki at Erie for March 3 and probably will meet Jimmy Columbo at Clarksburg, W. Va., a week later.

Girl Diving Champ Denies Pro Report

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Georgia Coleman, women's diving champion, said today reports she was to become a professional immediately were a "lot of hooey."

Announcement was made last week that Miss Coleman would appear as a performer in the annual Shrine hippodrome, an indoor circus. She said:

"I am leaving tonight for Miami, Fla., where I will train for the defense of my diving title in the East this summer. I do not know what I will do after that, but certainly I shall not become a professional until I have defended that championship."

STOCKS SLIDE UNDER BRISK SELLING

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—A brisk selling flurry swept over the stock market around noon today, but quickly subsided, after several prominent issues had lost 1 to 3 points.

Midweek business statistics, including steel and power production figures, failed to provide much cheer, although carloadings reports from individual railroads were largely favorable. Brokers said liquidation was not in important volume, but prices gave way rather easily, not only in shares but in bonds, and in bank and insurance stocks traded over the counter.

Some brokers felt that the market was becoming oversold, and was in a position to respond to good news. Progress in dealing with the Michigan banking situation was still watched more closely than anything else. Action of the House Coinage Committee yesterday in reversing its first decision to table remonetization bills, and to report favorably the Somers bill, gave the silver market another boost, although Washington reports indicated that no such measure was likely to be enacted at this session.

Both New York Central and Pennsylvania reported fair gains in carloadings last week. National Lead ordered its regular common and preferred dividends. Drug, Inc., reported 1932 net equivalent to $3.84 a share, against $5.55 in 1931. Some selling of American Telephone was reported, as a reflection of dividend cuts by its associated companies, tending to reduce the parent company's income, and arousing fresh uncertainty over continuance of its $9 annual dividend rate, although action is not now due for nearly three months.

FOREIGN NEWS LIFTS WHEAT

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Wheat tended upward early today, influenced by Liverpool reports that Chinese and Japanese buyers had re-entered the market. Sharply advanced quotations on silver were an additional bullish factor. Opening unchanged to ¼ up, wheat later held near the initial limits. Corn started a shade to ⅜ off, and subsequently altered little.

Helping to uphold wheat values were fresh reports of adverse domestic winter crop conditions, especially southwest and in the Ohio Valley. Corn and oats lacked aggressive buying.

Provisions were steadied by hog market upturns.

Selling Halts Rise In Silver Futures

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Speculative interest in silver was actively revived here today on news that the House Coinage Committee had reversed itself on the Somers bill, voting to report favorably that remonetization measure.

Futures on the National Metal Exchange soared one-third cent to about 2½ cents an ounce at the opening of trading, but later reacted, apparently under profit-taking, but trading remained brisk. Bar metal advanced ¼ cent to 27¼ cents an ounce.

In the first five weeks of the current year losses from films amounted to approximately $510,000 and losses from theaters to $166,385, it was stated. WOODIN FACING PROBLEMS ON U. S. DEBT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Terminating the refinancing operations of the Republican administration the Treasury will issue $100,000,000 in 91-day bills March 1, Secretary Mills announced today.

The bills will be sold on a discount basis.

The rate on bills has been increasing recently. Some time ago an all-time low record for government borrowing was reached at a rate of 0.09 per cent. The last issue sold at the equivalent of a 0.55 per cent rate.

11 BILLION CALLABLE

During the depression period, beginning with the 1930 fiscal year, the Treasury has issued the colossal total of $25,140,850,989 in securities of all kinds and has retired $21,270,232,238, or a debt turnover of approximately $46,000,000,000.

About $11,000,000,000 of the outstanding public offering of $20,801,707,000 is callable or matures within the next year.

4TH 4¼ DECISION SOON

The first maturity to be cared for by the Roosevelt administration, under the director of the new Secretary of the Treasury, William H. Woodin, will fall March 15 when $660,715,500 in 3¾ per cent certificates and $33,594,600 in 2 per cent anti-hoarding certificates become due.

The Woodin treasury administration must soon decide whether the 4¼ per cent fourth liberty loan of $6,268,096,550 will be called in October. The first Liberty of $1,933,212,600 already is callable.

BUSINESS

First Quarter Steel Prospects Are Uncertain

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE INCOME accounts of steel companies for the first quarter of the year are unlikely to show any improvement over those of the final three months of 1932.

While steel mill activity has been increasing since the beginning of the year, it has climbed only to about 20 per cent of capacity. This is practically equal to the operating rate which prevailed during October and November. Unless production in March takes a sharp turn upward, the output for the present quarter will show no great variation from the last quarter.

Inquiries now in the market for steel do not indicate that any sensational increase in orders is on the way for the coming month. A moderate gain in structural steel output is the only outstanding improvement in sight.

Price Cuts Have Offset Economies

CONTINUED PROGRESS has been made in reducing expenses, but the weakness in prices which appeared at the end of the year has more than offset the economies and is proving to be an important factor in adding to the losses of the steel companies.

Within recent weeks a movement has been launched to stabilize prices, and advances in quotations on some types of steel products have been announced. Higher prices will help the industry in the future, but the increases have come too late to be effective in cutting down the losses for the present quarter.

The move to stabilize prices may be expected to have a favorable influence on steel buying. Consumers ordinarily are hesitant about placing orders on a falling market.

Only One Company To Have Profit

IN THE FINAL quarter of 1932 only one of the outstanding steel companies was able to show a profit. This was National Steel. It is probable that this company will be the only steel maker to keep out of red ink in the present quarter.

The McKeesport Tin Plate Company also has been making money, but this organization is not, strictly speaking, a steel producer. The company buys its steel in semi-finished form. Demand for tin plate still is more active than for any other steel product.

Condition of Public Mind Is Pictured

By B. C. FORBES

HERE IS a report on the present state of the public mind, as revealed by the thousands of letters received by this column, supplemented by personal contacts and conversation:

Mr. Forbes

There is a growing demand that silver be utilized, in some way, to augment American and other currencies. The purchase of a considerable amount of the white metal by our government, and the issuance against it of paper money based either wholly on silver, or partly on silver and partly on gold, is being rather widely favored.

FINANCIAL HIGHER-UPS are insistent upon drastic revision of war debts; but the rank and file of taxpayers are, if anything, more uncompromisingly opposed today than ever before, to acting any Santa Claus role.

INDIGNATION AGAINST impossible heavy taxation is rising toward the point of rebellion. The recent refusal of our representatives at Washington to reduce their salaries incited much bitter, sarcastic criticism. The prevailing mental attitude is this:

"We simply haven't money to meet all the federal, state, county and local burdens levied on us."

The question is impatiently asked:

"Why shouldn't politicians be compelled to retrench the same as all the rest of us?"

UNORGANIZED WORKERS—wage earners, clerks, etc.—as well as many other citizens are complaining more and more loudly that many groups of strongly-unionized workers have succeeded in resisting wage cuts even approaching what they themselves have had to undergo. This condition is described as unfair, inequitable, not conductive to creating a sound foundation on which to start rebuilding.

THERE IS widespread but not universal indorsement of the results achieved by the share-the-work movement. The convention is now very general that mechanization not only warrants but makes unavoidable the permanent adoption of a shorter work-week.

AFTER A period of calm, there has developed a fresh wave of distrust of banks in many communities. As a consequence, considerable hoarding is going on, not all of it by small depositors.

CLAMOR FOR easement of mortgage and other debts has risen in pratically every part of the continent. Until recently condemnation of the attitude of large lending institutions was very widely prevalent. Of late, there has been a disposition to interpret favorably the various relief measures enacted and proposed.

AMONG VAST millions great things are expected of President Roosevelt. They confidently look for speedy and extremely effective action, although there is only the vaguest notion as to what definite form or forms such action can or will take. In the highest circles expectations are lower.

THAT REPEAL of prohibition will prove a panacea for all our ills is not so common a notion as it seemed to be not so very long ago. Nevertheless, the action taken by Congress is popularly approved.

HIGH FINANCE is not absolutely certain that dangerous inflationary proposals will not be introduced in Congress. Actual adoption is regarded as unlikely. The state of our national finances, notably our mounting deficit and our abnormal volume of short-term indebtedness, is not liked.

BY AND LARGE, hopefulness that the worst is over, economically, is gaining some ground.

SOCIAL UTILITY TEST OF ALL ACTIVITIES

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

Mr. Rukeyser

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The gulf that exists between the financial mind and the political mind has been exemplified anew by the current hearings by the Senate Finance Committee which has been investigating the ways of Wall street.

Although bankers squirm under unsympathetic questioning, the inquest is a necessary reminder that in a democracy in the last analysis all activities must be justified by the test of social utility.

When one eminent patrician of the financial district was asked concerning defaults, he placed them at 5 per cent of total issues brought out by his house.

Of course, with the wisdom of hindsight numerous practices of the "new era" period seem more nefarious than they were at the time. The foundation stones of investment security were removed when the realized national income fell from about $84,000,000,000 in 1928 to perhaps less than $40,000,000,000 in 1932.

Conclusions of bankers concerning the soundness of various issues were valid, provided their premises were true. But unfortunately their premises, consisting of confidence in continued economic stability, proved fallacious, and calculations based on such flimsy premises were necessarily ill founded.

As you get away from special details and analyze the broad underlying situation, it is apparent that we have been living in a highly speculative economic society, which has favored the trader and penalized the steady saver. In order to make safe investment a reality, instead of a salesman's slogan, it is necessary to improvise social machinery for business stabilization. This entails a conception of economic planning and business co-ordination.

From this viewpoint, Franklin D. Roosevelt's concept of the need for a "new deal" is distinctly relevant. In this connection the observation of Louis McHenry Howe, the President-elect's confidential aide, that "we must rebuild our whole economic structure to meet present conditions... without destroying the fundamental principles on which the republic was founded" is revealing.

BRITISH TRADE IMPROVING

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP.)—Trade statistics disclosed today that the United Kingdom imported more from the Dominions during 1932 than ever before and that its exports to Empire countries also increased in the same period.

Regarding the data, Leslie Hore-Belisha, financial secretary to the treasury, declared in a speech that "we are not only recovering but are shaping Britain anew."

The statistics showed that the British debit balance fell from £104,000,000 in 1931 to £59,000,000 in 1932, and that the adverse trade balance for the same period was reduced from £408,000,000 to £289,000,000. (The current value of the pound is about $3.43). Mr. Hore-Belisha described the trend as "one of the most miraculous rehabilitations ever recorded in history." He continued:

"If we had the same invisible receipts as we had in 1931 we should actually be £15,000,000 on the right side. We imported less food and more raw materials and exported more manufactured goods in 1932 than in 1931."

Plate Glass Output Higher for January

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

GRIPPING SERIAL OF A BUSINESS GIRL'S BATTLE FOR LOVE

CHAPTER VI.

"She means she wants to do something useful," Judith said sympathetically. "By 'running away from life' she means she's been slacking."

Zella smiled cynically. "Well, I think Loranda Tewson's pretty expert at running after things and not away from anything she'd ever take a fancy to."

She added: "If I make this change, there's a cute little apartment that a friend of Miss Tewson's wants to rent in a hurry so she can go south to Palm Beach. I had a look at it today. It's between Sixth and Seventh avenues on Fifty-sixth street and is nicely furnished. We can get it at its unfurnished rental, $100 a month."

With a pang of excitement Judith thought: "That isn't far from where Barry lives. We'd be taking the same subway twice a day—we'd be bound to run into each other——"

But she managed to make her tone quite casual as she said that if Zella decided to accept her offer it would be a convenient locality for her to live in, being so close to the little shop, and because of the subway being so handy it would be quite right for herself, as well.

Zella called Judith up at noon at the bank next day and told her she had decided to accept Miss Tewson's offer.

They went to see the little apartment at 5:30, walking over together from Braunwitz's store.

Judith was quite breathless with worry that someone else might have taken it.

JUDITH DELIGHTED

It was just the sort of little place that she had dreamed, "only a whole lot prettier," she admitted. The living room was square, with green walls and green-and-gold taffeta drapes at the windows. There was a Persian rug on the floor, and a painted Venetian secretary-desk set against one wall, with a tiny coffee table to match, and a gate-leg table in a corner near the radio, and a green plush couch drawn across one side of the fireplace.

By pulling the cushions forward and performing a trick or two with the back, the couch could be transformed into a regular bed—and it was here Judith would sleep at night.

The bathroom had a real window, and a good-sized chest of drawers with a mirror set on top of it in a good light. Judith would use this as a dressing room. Zella was to have the bedroom to herself, Judith insisted. She went into ecstasies over the tiny kitchenette that was just a sink and an electric stove and a frigidaire set in a cupboard.

Judith wove a rosy dream immediately, of herself sitting at the gate-leg table with a beautiful lace cloth on it, and yellow candles, and jonquils spraying out of a green bowl, and piles of little sandwiches and cakes, and Judith pouring tea for a cheery crowd, and the radio playing, and much talk and laughter. By getting the "right" people together she would soon make herself of Barry's world—he would come here—traveling on the same subway as they were now going to do, she would often run into him, and it would be the easiest thing in the world to invite him, she reasoned.

A DISAPPOINTMENT

Five days later, they moved in, paying a month's rent in advance. Judith's proportion of this was $35 as against Zella's $65. Zella insisted this was a fair division, because of extra advantages to herself.

Almost immediately, tragedy befell Judith. To her bitter disappointment she was transferred from the main bank on Wall street, where she had been so happy, to the new uptown branch on Fifty-ninth street and Madison avenue.

True, she got $2 a week more in salary—but what did she care for that when she was removed from the orbit of Barry Deane—when the days slipped by without any opportunity of seeing him!

Zella was so absorbed in her new move that she had no time to notice Judith's depression. She thought it a lucky break for Judith not to have to take the horrible subway ride twice a day—to live only a few blocks from her job—to have even a small promotion.

It pleased her that Judith could run into the shop at her lunch hour, and again before closing. Judith was going to be a marvelous help, with her expert knowledge of bookkeeping.

It was a dear little shop, in French gray and orchid, with silver painted chairs for the customers, and a rug so thick one's feet fairly sank into it.

At noon on a sunny day that was strangely springlike for January, Judith had run in to relieve Zella for half an hour so that the latter might do some necessary errands.

The grand opening that the young owner insisted on having was but a week away, and Zella was inordinately busy. Judith had brought in a sandwich for her lunch, and was making herself a cup of tea in the little room at the back of the shop when she heard the tinkle of the front door bell, and a strikingly pretty blonde girl entered.

FRIEND OF BARRY

Judith came forward. "Can I do anything for you?" Immediately she realized that she had seen this girl before, somewhere, and for a reason that she did not at the moment understand, something in her heart seemed to twist a little. What memory did that face evoke? Where had she met her?

"Do anything for me? Why, that's rather a good one, isn't it? I'm the owner of the place, but go right on making yourself at home!" And the newcomer laughed merrily.

At the sound of that high, gurgling little laugh, the blood flew to Judith's cheeks as a picture flashed back in her mind — closing time in the Knickerbocker Bank downtown —and two expensively dressed girls waylaying a handsome young man at the door of his office. This was the very pretty one who had chirped in Barry's face that he must come to her party that evening, or she would be "simply devastated!"

"You are—" she began.

"Loranda Tewson, business lady now. And you?"

"I'm Zella's friend—Judith."

"Oh, yes, I've heard of you. You and she rented my friend's comic little bunny-hutch on Fifty-sixth street. And you're going to help us with the books and over-time sometimes, aren't you?"

Judith nodded. She felt curiously relieved, somehow, that this bright orchid of a girl did not remember having seen her at the bank that day with Barry Deane—yet at the same time she was a little chagrined.

SECTIONAL VIEW OF CARBURETOR

The carburetor serves to pulverize the liquid fuel. The suction of the motor rushes the air through the carburetor; it draws the liquid fuel in a small stream out from the jets; this stream is broken into tiny drops and mixed with the air, forming an explosive.

ACETYLENE GENERATOR

Acetylene gas is generated by contact of calcium carbid and water. The reaction: CaC2+ 2H20 = (CaOH)2 + C2H2. Result is slacked lime and acetylene (C2H2). In the generator (2) are water-valve, (1), (3) carbid holder, (4) gas bell, (5) supports on the bell, (6) gas valve. Opening the gas valve, the water rises, reaches the carbid cakes, generates acetylene.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Evelyn Parker, "official reporter" of the Manor Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club sends in the following interesting items about her fellow club members.

Three of the happiest youngsters attending the meeting Saturday were Jack, Billy and Raymond Nathan. The three boys, with their parents, left yesterday for Florida where they will spend the remainder of the winter. After the stage show and pictures, they spent almost an hour in the lobby of the Manor Theater shaking hands and saying good-by. They promised to write Manager Joe Blowitz a weekly letter telling of their experiences while away.

The Theta Club, composed of boy members of the Manor Junior Komic Club, held a raffle Saturday before the meeting. All money taken in was turned over to the secretary of the Theta and will be used in buying food for the poor families of the district. Some of the boys who are members of this organization are: Richard Skirble, Lester Berlin, Charles Sapper, Donald Levine, Arthur Regew, Irving Talesfield and Henry Avner.

Jean Stanton, of South Negley avenue, while roller skating some weeks ago, fell and fractured her leg. Jean as a result had to spend some time in the hospital. However, she is progressing rapidly and she told some of her friends that she hoped to attend the meeting this Saturday. Everyone will be glad to see Jean, who is one of the most popular members of the club.

Congratulations to all the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club who are celebrating birthdays today.

Sarazen Shakes It Up

Golfers are still commenting on Gene Sarazen's unconstitutional amendment. Gene wants an eight-inch putting trap.

Henry Giffles: Ain't big enough. Make it six feet long, six feet deep and put a headstone on one end.

George Powchow: I have wandered aimlessly around greens for months without food or water. Make the hole 20 feet across and put a diving board on the edge.

Spinner Pridemore: Gene Sarazen has the right idea, but he stops too quick. Keep digging until you strike oil.

Eddie Inkitts: I had a bad cold last week and took three putts on a quinine pill before I sunk it.

Charley Sloose: I have been pro at a miniature golf club during the last three blizzards. Some of those turnips couldn't drop an egg into a butter tub.

Bill Holligan: Make the lockers bigger so I can get my shoes in. Played down at the Flushing Country Club and had to walk home in my stocking feet.

Tink Turner: Sarazen is only thinking up another place for lazy caddies to hide.

Nippers Hoozle: Why not use a garbage can and play the game with rotten apples?

Fred Parroo: Kinda dangerous size. Guess it's all right if the golfers rope themselves together on the green.

Tiddles Jones: Who's Sarazen?

Hooks Wright: Gene is probably looking ahead to the time when he will be old folks.

We wish to state that none of the indorsers has been paid for his opinion. Every statement was written while the experts were wearing smoked glasses. Therefore, we warn the A. A. U. they are still amateurs.

Waterway Projects Provide Emergency Jobs for the Idle

A visitor from Mars, viewing 12,000,000 able-bodied Americans without gainful employment, might well jump to the conclusion that the process of building up our country had been completed.

Of course, such an inference would not be warranted.

As long as men can imagine a better lot for themselves, vast developmental work will remain to be done.

With private industry deadlocked, it behooves the federal government to impart stimulus by quickening public construction.

With the process of the winning of the continent still far from completed, there is no necessity of thinking up useless made-work.

On the contrary, jobs can be found for many of the unemployed in bringing to fruition economically sound projects which have already been recommended as essential by competent engineers.

By accelerating public works in time of depression, the government serves its people well.

It satisfies the demand for economy by taking advantage of prevailing low costs, on the one hand.

On the other hand, it redeems from wasteful idleness the valuable work-power of many of its citizens.

The Hearst newspapers have long been advocating the speeding up of all useful and economically sound public works, including highway construction, flood control, completion of inland waterway projects, the development of rivers and harbors, reforestation and other schemes for the conservation of natural resources.

By way of illustration, consider inland waterway projects.

Under careful planning, such activities provide interior sections of the country with waterway communication and the equivalent of seacoasts.

Thus they further integrate sections of the country into a more closely knit nation.

Whenever pushed forward, these projects offer enduring benefits, but, if accelerated in time of acute economic stagnation, they also alleviate social distress by providing the jobless with gainful employment.

The benefits of giving employment to the jobless in time permeate through the whole economic system.

As the unemployed get purchasing power, they return to the shops as consumers; the stores in turn restock from wholesalers and manufacturers, who take on additional employes as they revive operations. Thus, a benign spiral of recovery is instituted.

Accordingly, wherever partially completed projects are moving haltingly, the full power of the federal government should be put behind them to speed work at a time when jobs are more acutely needed than in normal times.

Numerous activities are under way, and need only to be accelerated.

To mention a few, an improvement has been projected in the James River to carry deep draft shipping to Richmond, Va. The project entails straightening of the river below Richmond by cutting off the present long bends in its course. Rights of way for the first of these cut-offs were presented by the city last month, and bids for the work were recently sought.

On the west coast, the Golden Gate harbor at San Francisco is being improved by providing a channel 45 feet deep and 2,000 feet wide, straight out to sea through the ocean bar off the harbor entrance. Likewise, work has started on the breakwater which will provide an outer harbor at Los Angeles. A channel 35 feet deep will be made up the Columbia River more than 100 miles to Portland, Ore.

In connection with improvement of the Great Lakes for transportation of iron ore and grain from the Northwest, Secretary of War Hurley recently advised that still greater economies can be effected if deeper channels are made available.

Another major undertaking is the development of a protected intracoastal waterway over 1,000 miles in length extending along the Atlantic coast from the Delaware River to Miami; and another intracoastal waterway more than 700 miles in length along the gulf coast from Pensacola on the west coast of Florida to Corpus Christi, Tex.

The Atlantic waterway is ready except for a cut, 35 miles in length, in the northern part of South Carolina.

The gulf coast waterway before the end of the current year will be opened from New Orleans to Port Arthur and possibly to Galveston. The extension south from Galveston to Corpus Christi has not yet been built. From New Orleans eastward to Mobile the project is ready, and the section between Mobile and Pensacola has been scheduled for 1934.

Only a tithe of the $75,000,000 needed for the improvement of the Tennessee River—$5,000,000—has thus far been authorized.

Likewise, the War Department is urging additional appropriations for the comprehensive improvement of the Mississippi River from the mouth of the Illinois River to Minneapolis.

No false sense of economy should result in penury on the part of Congress in pushing forward these vast public improvements NOW, especially in view of Secretary Hurley's statement that "in this program of public construction on our rivers and harbors, the War Department has taken special pains wherever possible to employ as many men as possible and thus provide added jobs at a time when so many have been thrown out of work."

With the paramount need of the nation centering around unemployment relief and the increase of the gross volume of business, Congress, though insisting on economy in operating expenditures, must recognize that the occasion calls for generous capital investments in permanent improvements.

A Breach of Contract

In Abandoning Teachers Colleges the State Would Be Unfaithful to a Trust.

The plan in the proposed new School Code to abandon some of the 14 State Teachers Colleges has caused dismay in all the towns in which the colleges are located. The comment is made that the commonwealth would be doing a dishonorable thing in abolishing any of these institutions, and there is not a little justification for the charge.

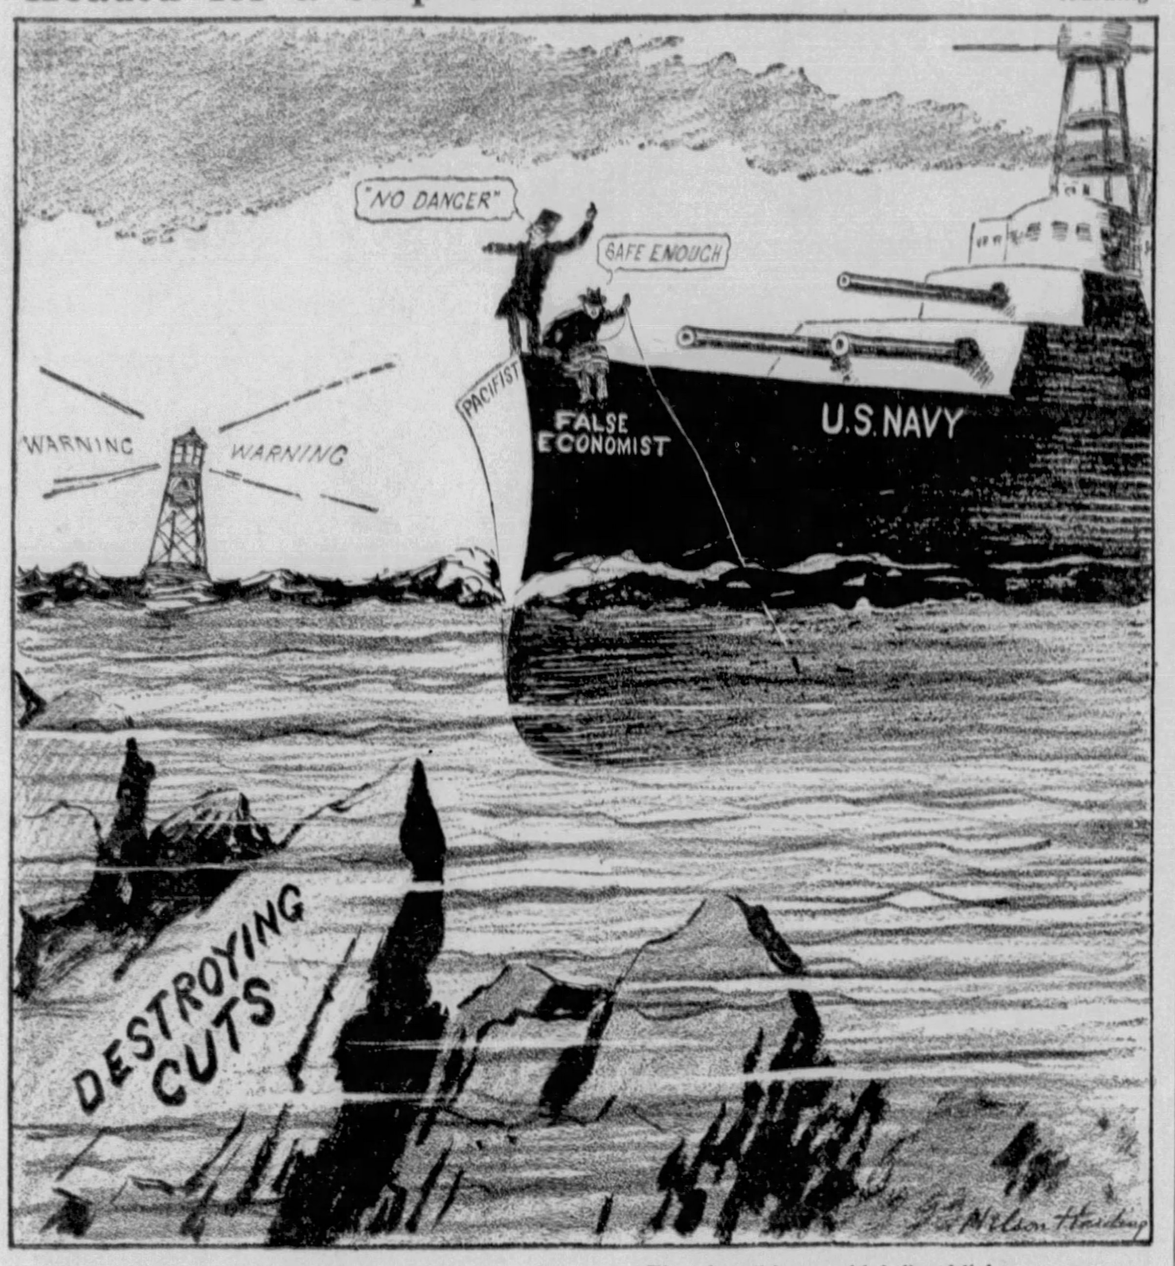
Examination of the origin and historical development of the colleges discloses that all of the communities in which they are located contributed money for their establishment, and some donated land. In accepting these gifts the commonwealth placed itself under a moral obligation to maintain the schools. Morally it will be a breach of contract and a betrayal of trust to close them.

Not one of the Western Pennsylvania towns having State Teachers Colleges—California, Indiana, Slippery Rock, Clarion and Edinboro—but would suffer very appreciably by the loss of the college, and we believe this to be true also of the Teachers College towns in other parts of the state.

But it is not only these towns that would suffer. All Pennsylvania would be adversely affected by the loss of a single one of these educational centers. Each of them diffuses culture over a wide area. Each radiates benefits which, if measurable in dollars and cents, would be found worth many times the relatively small appropriation that the state grants for their support.

Headed for a Shipwreck

By Nelson Harding



Poor navigators are this pair;
The all too trusting pacifist
And his misguided partner, who,
Is but a false economist.

The channel buoy, with bell and light,
Sends out its warnings loud and clear,
But still the ship is kept upon
A course that brings disaster near.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

On a Hill

A house on a hill,
And I ask for no more,
With the lark's clear trill
On the wind at my door!

For a house set high
Above passing feet,
Set close to the sky,
Where the rain is sweet
On the rocky ledge
At the steep hill's crest,
Whence I see to world's edge,
Looking east, looking west!

This is all I ask:
Just a sun-drenched place
Where the lizards bask
On the pale rocks' face,
Where the silvery notes
Of the thrushes chime,
And the fleet, wild goats
Up the ledges climb.

Life has sown joy's seeds
On a hill for me
Where the world recedes
Like a stormy sea!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—About the bleakest spot, to me, in Manhattan—especially in winter — is that southernly tip of the island, known as Battery Park. Life, like the land there, suddenly runs out. And there remains in the desolation only a scatter of beached unfortunates touching bottom on park benches.

Oddly enough, Chris Morley once found in its center a stone carved with a somewhat prophetic: "Coast and Geodetic Survey, Basic Bench Mark." The park snags more abject down-and-outers than the Bowery. This may be because, at the moment, seamen, who drift there, are in desperate straits.

One must emerge through the rich roar of Wall Street to reach the park, and this gives the abandonment a sharp contrast. Today, three outcasts were stuffing old newspapers beneath their clothing. An observer said: "They're getting ready for night. That keeps them warm."

Battery Park is the immigrant's first stop after disembarking. He stands there with his pitiful belongings and, in sheeplike dumbness, awaits guides who will start him on his journey to wheat or coal fields, or wherever he may be going. The surroundings must chill the heart of a newcomer.

A mimeograph mentioning of the Algonquin's round table activities includes only one feminine name in an illustrious roster—that is of Margolo Gilmore. Incidentally, Frank Case recently launched a supper club in one of his dining rooms, the first concession of the prim hostelry to Broadway's hoop-de-doo.

It was thought Ellen Berlin's story, "But Not For Love!" in the magazines would concern her romance with Irving Berlin. Instead, it was a many-faceted little gem of fiction. Mrs. Berlin had written a tayle or so for The New Yorker when marriage interrupted her literary endeavors. But, like many others of great wealth, she can use an extra penny these days. And the reading world profits.

* * *

Still another society lady to flower among the magazines recently is Clare Boothe Brokaw, who has become managing editor of Vanity Fair. She, like Ellen Berlin, is a fragile blonde with large and shining eyes and has already made a distinct mark in the new job.

Dresden china editresses are a far cry from the hell-roarers of my day. Yet out of their rough-neck bluster I recall learning but one thing. I had written of a hotel arrival as a guest. "What do you mean guest?" a city editor shrieked. "He pays doesn't he? Don't ever let me catch you using guest for patron." And the umpty-ump never did.

* * *

On the staff of this paper at the same time were Roy Howard, Ray Long, William Philip Simms, H. T. Webster, R. M. Brinkerhoff, Eugene Walter and Ray Rohn. There was a press telegrapher, Lloyd Scholl, now high in the councils of the Western Union, who was Father Confessor to a wayward group. On bleak and headachy blue Mondays we crept to his clicking coop for a few comforting words—and 50 cents or so for lunch money. He never failed us, but Saturdays, during those mysterious, sudden quiets that come to the rattle-tebang of editorial rooms, he would tweak us.

For instance, in the calm, Scholl's voice would boom over a dead phone to some imaginery inquirer: "I can't believe (naming the debtor out loud) won't pay what he owes. He pays me promptly." So great was our fear of exposure, we cracked on the line.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Technocracy — technology—surveys by the score—we're certainly giving ourselves a thorough auditing these days.

More machines, or less? Payment by money, or by "energy units?" Shorter hours, or longer? Everyone has an analysis of what ails us—a solution for our salvation.

But there's one ill concerning which I've seen no mention, and that's the predicament of the man who has been robbed of his importance.

No, I don't mean the unemployed man, or the jobless man. I mean the millions of men whom the Machine Age has shoved into jobs which have no meaning, and which rob the worker of all his creative pride.

Creative pride—the desire to make something, to put oneself on record—that goes deeper than the greed for money rewards or social prestige. It goes as deep as the roots of life itself; as deep as a man's need for food or reproduction. It is the motive power which turned ape-things into men; and men into civilized beings.

FROM THE FIRST SAVAGE, SCRATCHING HIS CRUDE RECORD OF A HUNT ON A WALRUS TUSK, TO THE SMARTEST TWENTIETH CENTURY ECONOMIST, PROUDLY PRESENTING HIS REPORT TO COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, MEN HAVE WANTED TO DO OR MAKE SOMETHING WHICH BORE THE MARK OF THEIR OWN PERSONALITY.

And, until Big Money plus Machines got the best of us, most people found the chance to do this through their jobs.

Jobs meant something fifty years ago. They were large enough to be an interesting adventure in which a man could, literally, spread himself. A cobbler, laboriously making a shoe from the sole up, was a creator. He had his special place in the sun. His skill was necessary—could not be duplicated by any chance stranger.

The cobbler did not earn much. His wages were a mere pittance compared to some of those on the union scale, and his output was not particularly handsome. But that clumsy shoe was HIS own. Into it he had put A PORTION OF HIS OWN LIFE—and it gave him a chance to gloat, and a chance to dream.

But what chance has the man who holds a job in the Machine Age to either gloat or dream?

Have you seen an automobile made in one of the big factories? There a man gets a very high "living wage;" yet never was a man more poorly paid. FOR THE ESSENTIAL THING WHICH MAKES FOR PROUD AND EAGER LIVING HAS BEEN ELIMINATED FROM HIS JOB.

All day long he stands before an endlessly traveling platform, and tightens a bolt. He tightens that bolt accurately and efficiently, and he helps to make a good car. But what does he do to his life? He deprives his life of its human significance. He becomes a beautifully synchronized machine—but he ceases to be a man.

The terrible thing that is happening to that man in the big factory is happening to people all over the world. Jobs have lost their meaning. People have been robbed of their pride.

AND NEITHER PROFIT NOR POSSESSIONS NOR PLEASURE CAN BE A SUBSTITUTE FOR PRIDE.

Why are women restless in modern homes? Because, to a great degree, all the creative tasks have been taken out of those homes to make a profit for Big Business.

Why does the modern, working youngster care so little for his work? Why does he compare so unfavorably with the old-fashioned apprentice who worked so willingly for a term of years at a beggarly stipend? For the same reason. The apprentice was working to express himself. The twentieth century youngster is merely part of an intricate machine which makes dividends for stockholders.

Why is the whole world restless, discontented, aimless, resentful? Because life has lost its importance. Machines have done more than rob men of jobs. They have robbed men of pride.

There is a dreadful, dumb humiliation in the hearts of men. You can't cure that with higher wages or shorter hours or added leisure. How then? Do you know of a way?

Text For Today

And if it seems evil unto you to serve the Lord, choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of he flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwelt: but as for me and my house we will serve the Lord. — Joshua, xxiv:15.

Branch Banking Benefits

The Isolated Bank Lacks the Safeguards Enjoyed by an Institution with Diversified Support.

By JULIUS G. BERENS

Financial Editor, New York American.

THE case for branch banking is unwittingly aided by the economic policy commission of the American Bankers' Association, when the commission states:

"While no arbitrary dimensions can be stated for the size of the banking plant required by the economic activities of the nation, it is probable . . . that the present number of banks and volume of banking capital CAN TAKE CARE for some time to come of expansion in business activities of the country."

The American Bankers' Association is decidedly unfriendly to branch banking.

But its own economic policy commission, in the above assertion included in the report submitted to the association's annual meeting in October, infers that the banking plant is at least large enough; perhaps they agree that there are TOO MANY INDIVIDUAL UNITS?

AT present there are approximately 17,000 commercial banking institutions in the United States. The number has been reduced from 30,800 in 1921, mostly through failures.

Despite the reduction in number of units, each bank today represents only 6,000 persons, on the average. This is 6,000 of population, not depositors or customers.

The average deposits of the country's banks today approximate $2,500,000.

The average capital funds per bank now are about $420,000.

Local pride in a locally-owned and locally-operated bank is justifiable, but not if such pride is generated at the expense of jeopardizing the depositors and the community itself.

No doubt many of the smaller banks have successfully weathered the storm of recent years through sheer honesty and capability of management.

BUT a localized institution is at the mercy frequently of a single crop, a single locality, a single industry, a single local influence.

The isolated bank, however meritorious from the angle of community development and pride, nevertheless lacks the safeguards of a broad support enjoyed by institutions with diversified deposits and business in industrial, agricultural, residential communities and activities.

A single branch may prove unprofitable, but this can be offset by the remainder of the branches without impairing the institution itself. A bank office need not be a magnificent structure to represent safety.

Is it necessary to recall the experience of England and Canada, specifically, with reference to the remarkable stability of their banks while 10,000 American banks closed their doors?

Neither England nor Canada have had a bank failure in years.

Both countries permit, in fact encourage, unlimited branch banking. Some of their institutions have several thousand branches each.

The United States may not require nationwide branch banking; IT DOES REQUIRE EXPANSION OF BRANCH BANKING ON A WHOLESALE BASIS.

BRANCH banking provides a stability to individual institutions. It is economical; its many-rooted foundations provide safeguards against sudden economic squalls which would catch unawares the isolated, single-industry, or single-community institution, to the detriment of depositors and businessmen alike.

The country has been marching slowly but steadily toward branch banking; everything possible should be done by the Congress and State Legislatures to speed the procession.

Branch banking forms a basic and vital contribution to needed banking reform.

Another major reform will be advocated in subsequent articles.

A DEVOTED MOTHER

By Winifred Black

What a lovely mother she is. What a complete and perfect mother.

She lives for her children—two boys and one girl.

She makes all her girl's party dresses herself. She can't tell any dressmaker how to make them so that they will be pretty enough and "different" enough when they are done.

She chooses all daughter's friends for her; this one is too bold, that one is too lazy, the other is too dull, and nice little daughter says: "Yes, mother, dear," and away go the girls she would have liked to like.

The boys get the same loving, devoted attention.

Billy is a studious chap, with a love of philosophy.

Mother is awfully proud of Billy. She "draws him out" when there is company, and tells everybody she doesn't know how he ever came to be her son—he has such a marvelous mind and such deep devotion to science and all the ologies.

I have seen Billy actually squirm under these eulogies—but dear, devoted mother never notices that.

And now daughter is in love with a nice, fine young man who has a good, honest commercial life ahead of him and mother thinks it would be tragic for daughter to throw herself away in a commonplace existence such as she would have if she married the nice young man.

And Billy is in love, too—he hasn't told his mother or his father a thing about it.

Father knows, and Julian knows, and they're scared to death for fear of what is going to happen when mother guesses the truth.

Dear mother, she's so sweet and so good and so self-sacrificing—I don't suppose she has the least idea that she is pushing her children right out over the edge of the home nest all the time she thinks she is covering them in safety.

I'm sorry for the children—but I'm sorry for mother, too.

Most of all I'm sorry for father.

He isn't quite sure what he ought to do about it all, so like a wise man he is doing absolutely nothing.

I'd hate to be the girl one of those boys marries, or the man who marries pretty little sister.

Rough weather ahead, children, rough weather ahead, and all poor mother is trying to do is to be good and devoted and unselfish—so she thinks.
